REBEL ARMY LEADER, in white shirt, struggles for his life as he is taken away by government soldiers during recent roundup in Kindu, The Congo. He and other prisoners were taken to Leopoldville for imprisonment. Government troops left Kindu Thursday in advance on rebel stronghold of Stanleyville where Canadians are held as hostages.

Paratroopers Ready To Rescue Hostages

Belgian Force Set for Action

BRUSSELS (AP)—Belgian paratroopers are ready to intervene if needed to save the lives of whites held as hostages in The Congo's rebel-held Stanleyville, the government announced tonight.

A foreign affairs ministry statement said a battalion of Belgian paratroopers was awaiting further orders on the island of Ascension, off the west coast of Africa.

The announcement said that "with the assistance of the U.S. Air Force, the 1st Battalion of Belgian Paratroopers has been transported to the island of Ascension, where they are staying with the authorization of the British government."

The statement described the move as "preparatory measures so as to undertake, if needed, a rescue operation for purely humanitarian reasons."

Congolese Warn U.S., Belgium

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—A Congolese government spokesman today warned Belgium that any unilateral decision to send troops into The Congo would be "aggression"—but if a proposal were first made to the Congo government, "the latter would study it with favor."

The spokesman was Emmanuel Sinda, who also warned the United States against negotiating with the Stanleyville rebel regime without Congo government agreement, and went on: "Belgium's unilateral decision to send elite troops (paratroopers) to The Congo to protect her citizens would be ... aggression."

COMPROMISE

NATO Backs N-Fleet Study

PARIS (Reuters)—Parliamentarians of the 15 NATO member countries today approved a recommendation urging their governments to explore in detail various approaches to the creation of a NATO nuclear force.

WIRE BRIEFS

Killer Loses Appeal

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today rejected an appeal by Lawrence Herman Haase of Kelowna, B.C., against his capital murder conviction for the stabbing death of Donna Margaret Ring, a 11-year-old girl. He is scheduled to be hanged Dec. 1.

Layoffs at Ford

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Ford of Canada has laid off 4,450 workers here and at Windsor as the result of shortage of parts for assembly lines because of strikes in its United States plants, a company spokesman said today.

Storm Toll High

MANILA (UPI)—A dying Typhoon Louise left a heavy toll of death and property damage as it blew itself out today in the Central Philippines. Hundreds were feared killed by the storm.

'Copter Shot Down

SAIGON (Reuters)—Viet Cong rebel machine-gunners shot down a helicopter evacuating wounded in a battle northwest of Saigon today, and at least 10 persons were killed as it plummeted from treetop level and burst into flames.

Railway Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—A strike by non-operating employees of the Long Island Railroad delayed thousands of Manhattan-bound commuters up to 1½ hours today.

Puck Pacts Probed

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Favreau said today he is asking the anti-combines branch of his department to investigate contracts tying up 10-year-old hockey players for their playing careers.

Canada Names Yukon Peak In Honor of John Kennedy

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson announced today that a mountain in the Yukon near Alaska is being named Mount Kennedy to commemorate the late president of the United States, assassinated a year ago.

Making his announcement in the Commons, Mr. Pearson said the lofty 14,000-foot peak is a fitting memorial to Mr. Kennedy, "a solid and enduring monument ... a symbol of aspiration and upward reach."

Mr. Pearson noted that it was a year ago that President Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, Texas, and said the shock of the world is still felt.

The prime minister recalled that he had attended the funeral of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1945, and said there was a great outpouring of grief then, but for a man who had done his work.

The grief over the death of John Fitzgerald Kennedy was for a young man just rising to his career heights and the grief was coupled with "the ache of unfulfillment."

Mount Kennedy is one of the highest peaks in Canada that hitherto had no name. Its location is 60 degrees north latitude and 140 degrees west longitude.

THANT

... sets report

Atom Ban Summit Proposed

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—United Nations Secretary-General U Thant called today for greater progress in disarmament in 1965 and proposed talks among the nuclear powers, including Communist China, to check the nuclear arms race.

Thant's call was contained in his 10,000-word introduction to the annual report on the state of the world as he sees it—to the UN General Assembly opening Dec. 1.

His statement dwelt briefly on the precarious UN financial situation and wound up with the hope there will be a solution before the assembly meets.

Thant reported a $113,300,000 deficit as of Sept. 30, arrears of $112,300,000 on the Congo and Middle East peace-keeping accounts and only $24,800,000 cash on hand. He said cash resources would practically disappear in six months unless a payments solution is found.

The secretary-general made no reference to U.S. determination to challenge the General Assembly voting rights of the Soviet bloc and France unless they pay peace-keeping arrears.

Thant said disarmament questions continue to have high priority on the international agenda, despite the advances marked by the limited nuclear test-ban treaty which he noted "remains neither universal nor comprehensive."

Communist China and France have not signed it and there has been no agreement to ban uranium.

No Special Blame on Jews For Crucifixion—Vatican

VATICAN CITY (CP)—The Vatican ecumenical council today approved a historic declaration on the Jews and other non-Christians after Pope Paul rejected a move led by Canadian and U.S. bishops for an immediate vote on the council's controversial religious liberty declaration.

The document on non-Christians, which says the Jews must never be considered cursed or specially blamed for the crucifixion of Christ, was approved by 1,657 prelates in favor, 242 in favor but reservations and 99 opposed.

The declaration also makes overtures to the Hindus, Buddhists and Moslems and restates the Roman Catholic Church's opposition to discrimination or harassment on account of race, color or creed.

The declaration, one of the most controversial before the council, is not expected to be promulgated as a decree until the next council session.

During the recess that begins after Saturday's closing, it will be revised to take into account some of the reservations expressed by prelates today.

But the favorable vote means no major changes of substance can be made, and that it is only a question of time—barring unforeseen developments—before the declaration becomes a formal council decree.

U.K. Surcharges Off 'In Months'

GENEVA (CP)—Danish Foreign Minister Per Hækkerup said today the British government has agreed to start dismantling its 15 per cent import surcharge "within a matter of months."

Hækkerup gave no indication whether a definite timetable for the dismantling process has been set. He spoke briefly with reporters as the European Free Trade Association ministerial council met to ratify an agreement hammered out in an all-night session in a Geneva hotel room.

Informed sources said the agreement included a commitment by Britain to give her six EFTA partners a voice in gradually dismantling the surcharge they had bitterly denounced as a violation of the EFTA treaty.

The marathon session was attended by the foreign and trade ministers of the EFTA nations, including British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker and Douglas Jay, president of the British Board of Trade.

"Bowing to EFTA pressure, they accepted the creation of a watchdog committee which will be authorized to keep a close eye on the British economy, informed sources said. The committee will have a say in determining when the British economy is in a sufficiently healthy state for the surcharge to be reduced or eliminated."

Gordon Walker repeatedly telephoned to London during the night to consult with Prime Minister Harold Wilson as the tense negotiations progressed.

Gas Fire Still Burns

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP)—Preparation of equipment will prevent fire fighters from making another attempt today to quell a gas well fire that has been burning millions of cubic feet of gas since it broke out Monday.

WAC's LIFE THREATENED

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Mervin James Underhill was charged here today with threatening the lives of Premier Bennett and Dr. Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority.

Police said the threats were made in a letter, which also contained a threat to blow up the Peace River power project.

Underhill, a former worker at the Peace project and the father of four children, was remanded to Nov. 23 for a psychiatric report.

Happy Ending for Abandoned Baby

By MARGE GILROY
The story of baby "Lotta", a baby who had been abandoned in Korea, was a disheartening tale last year.

This year the story is progressing to a happy ending as the baby has been adopted by a Korean family and is growing up to be a healthy wee girl.

The story was told last year by Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova, director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, when she made her annual visit to Victoria.

The baby had been abandoned on the steps of the Unitarian Service Committee headquarters in Korea. Social workers took the child in and named her Lotta. This spring Dr. Hirschmanova saw her namesake happily placed in an adoption home.

It is rewards such as these which keep Dr. Hirschmanova campaigning for funds to feed new babies, still being abandoned at an increasing rate.

STUDENT SHARES

It is also teen-agers like Frances Gregory who make the campaign a success.

Frances is a student at Claremont Senior High School. She, along with other Canadian teen-agers enjoys a high standard of living, but she shares what she has with others, less fortunate.

She has an adopted sister in an orphanage in Severs, outside Paris, whom she supports, but she doesn't stop sharing there. This year she collected $21.21 in a USC collection box. All year she saved a coin a day for a hungry child, and Wednesday night she donated it to the "Help The Hungry Child" fund.

Two more contributions today have sent the fund over the $1,000 mark, reaching a total of $1,010.38.

Donations are tax deductible and may be sent to the Times-sponsored "Help The Hungry Child" fund care of the Times. Official receipts will be sent out later from USC headquarters and donors will be acknowledged daily in the paper.

GLASGOW, Scotland—A Scotsman who kept two homes and two families going "in happiness and comfort" for 20 years was fined $700 Thursday after pleading guilty to bigamy charges.

Andrew McNeill, 64, told his first wife Mary, to whom he was wed in 1928, that he had to go away on business.

He told the second, also named Mary, that he was an intelligence officer in the Royal Navy.

His counsel, Lawrence Dowdall, told the court McNeill had to go off "on James Bond missions" to maintain the subterfuge.

Actually, he was working 20 hours a day as a scrap metal dealer to try to make both ends meet for both families.

McNeill was the father of three children by the first, and one by the second.

SAN FRANCISCO—Henry H. Noyes is a happy man. His business is booming, his supplier doesn't complain about not being paid and he has the government's blessing to trade with China.

Noyes runs the China Books and Periodicals Shop in San Francisco. He carries only reading matter published on the Chinese mainland, principally at Peking.

The 54-year-old bookman, born in Canton of missionary parents, said he believes he is the only dealer of his kind in the U.S. who obtains his stocks directly from China under U.S. treasury department licence.

Noyes carries the writings that are read throughout the world by governments and individuals who are interested in the temper of the leaders of China's 700,000,000 population.

In the four years he's been in business, Noyes said in an interview, he has built his sales to 60,000 books and periodicals a year. His customers are 1,000 libraries, mostly college, several thousand individuals and book stores, and various offices of the U.S. military.

CORNWALL, Ont.—A 40-year-old Montreal housewife, who said she can no longer enjoy sex relations because of a traffic accident injury, has made an out-of-court settlement for $12,148.

Mrs. Simone Lariviere agreed to the settlement after she started a damage action against truck driver Abraham Wamstecker of Long Sault, Ont., and E. D. Smith and Sons of Winona, Ont., owner of the truck.

Mrs. Lariviere said her desire for sex vanished after she suffered a back injury when hit by a truck as she stood beside a stalled car in 1962 near here.

LONDON—The remains of Sir Roger Casement, Irish revolutionary, soon may return to his homeland.

Casement lies beneath the walls of London's Pentonville Jail, where he was hanged by the British for treason during the First World War. Just before he died, he said: "When they have done with me, don't let my bones lie in this dreadful place. Take me back to Ireland and let me lie there."

Since then successive Irish governments and friends of Ireland in the British Parliament have urged that Casement's dying wish be granted.

Thursday night in the House of Commons came a hint that the new Labor government may yield.

LONDON—Britain's league against cruel sports is angry because 14-year-old Princess Anne may go fox hunting for the first time at Christmas.

The Daily Express reported Thursday that the princess, a good horsewoman, is eager to hunt. The newspaper said she would have an opportunity this Christmas while on vacation at Windsor Castle, the Queen's home near London.

The league will hold an emergency meeting next Tuesday to discuss a protest to the Queen.

WALLA WALLA, Wash.—Politically speaking, Mrs. Tom Gehr and Dr. Morton Tompkins are friendly enemies.

She is an ardent Democrat; he, an equally ardent Republican. Both worked hard in the recent campaign. But Mrs. Gehr had the last word.

When Dr. Tompkins removed the sheet to operate on Mrs. Gehr Wednesday, he found neatly taped on her abdomen: A map of the United States on which was written, "All the way with LBJ."

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Deputy Sheriff Charles Swint, 24, was sitting in his bedroom talking over the telephone to a fellow officer when his wife, Janice, appeared at the door with a .45-caliber pistol in her hand.

Swint told Deputy Leroy Canady his wife had the gun. "She won't shoot," he said into the telephone. "She loves me. She doesn't even know how to cock it (the pistol)."

"Well," he said a moment later, "she's got it cocked." Canady heard the gun roar over the telephone. Swint fell dead with a bullet in his chest.

That was on Oct. 4. A coroner's jury ruled Thursday that Mrs. Swint committed justifiable homicide.

Mrs. Swint contended that her husband beat her and her children. A charge of manslaughter was dropped.

City Nurse Foresaw Trouble With Rebels

A Victoria nurse, who is among the 31 Canadians now being held captive by rebel forces in the Congo, earlier this summer wrote to her sister here and indicated there might be trouble.

In a letter to Mrs. Violet A. Laing, 1221 Reynolds, dated June 29, Miss Muriel Caroline Harman, now a prisoner near Stanleyville wrote: "We will not be going to the missionary conference at Bambi (near Stanleyville) next month, as we might be stopped half way and not be able to proceed, or, worse, be prevented from returning."

Further steps are necessary, and the time is ripe," he said, to strengthen and advance disarmament proposals and bring about an improvement in the political climate.

Accordingly, I consider it to be of the highest importance that what was not achieved during the past few months be yet achieved at the forthcoming session of the General Assembly and during the next round of talks at the 19-nations disarmament committee in 1965," Thant said.

With the question of seating Communist China in the UN coming up in the forthcoming assembly session, Thant also proposed a 600 in the UN door for "other countries not at present represented" in the UN.

Thant did not identify what countries he meant or how he expected to accomplish his aim.

He expected the West German ambassador to the United Nations that he does not include Communist East Germany in the list because it does not have wide diplomatic recognition by other countries.

That limitation also would rule out Communist North Viet Nam and Communist North Korea.

Describes trip across one of the tributaries of the Congo River to the Kikuli tribe Miss Harman wrote: "The worst time was when a crowd of red-painted drunken women came to the back of the hut in which we were to annoy us with their dancing. The drumming went on all night."

"But in another place, we went to the village of a big chief who is very modern and educated. He gave us quite a good welcome, even giving me his room and bed."

"Unfortunately, the room was small and windowless, for the big brick house he was building before independence still remains unfinished, typical of things as they are now."

Another letter to the Church of Our Lord missionary group from the Worldwide Evangelical Crusade, dated Oct. 14 contained information from some who had managed to escape the rebels.

It said, "many unconfirmed rumors combine to present a very discouraging picture. What we know is that all motor vehicles and radios have been confiscated and that missionaries are being held as hostages, to try to prevent an attack by Tshombe's forces. So far as we know none of our people has suffered violence."

'Noisy Entrance' To Court Costs Youth $45

An 18-year-old youth today paid part of the price for his "noisy entrance" to magistrate's court.

John Macdonald, 400 Craig flower, was fined a total of $45 and placed on probation for one year on a $100 bond. In addition his parents had to pay $127 to replace a window he broke.

MacDonald earlier pleaded guilty to wilfully breaking the window, using obscene language, causing a disturbance and assaulting another youth.

The charges all arose out of a Halloween Eve drinking episode in the district near his home.

Magistrate J. A. Byers said a pre-sentence report showed this was MacDonald's first appearance in magistrate's court and he commented, "You certainly made a noisy entrance."

He ordered MacDonald to "keep decent company" during the period of his probation.

Salt Spring Man To Elect Trial Here on Dec. 4

A Salt Spring Island man charged in connection with an alleged $250,000 fraud will elect his means of trial Dec. 4.

Robert A. Foulis was demanded to that date when he appeared before Magistrate J. A. Byers in city court this morning.

Foulis was charged several months ago in connection with a scheme for the buying and resale of liquor. He appealed up to the B.C. Court of Appeal to have the charges quashed but his appeal was dismissed.

Foulis is free on bail.

Fines Total $44 For Disturbance

Breaking the light in a police patrol wagon cost Leonard Seimen, 832 North Park, a total of $29 when he appeared in court today.

He was also fined an addition $15 for causing a disturbance.

Seimen was picked up on Topaz Wednesday night by police for yelling and shouting. He broke the light after being bundled into the wagon on his way to jail.

2 MORE MEN SOUGHT IN TRUNK MYSTERY

ROME (AP)—Italian police searched today for two more Egyptians they say are implicated in Rome's man-in-the-trunk mystery.

Israeli authorities announced in Tel Aviv they had definitely identified the man found bound and gagged in a diplomatic trunk headed for Egypt as Mordechai Louk, alias Joseph Dahan.

Reports in Tel Aviv said Louk was suspected of having made anti-Israel broadcasts over Cairo radio's Hebrew language service and would be put on trial if returned to Israel.

There were suggestions Israel would demand his extradition.

Louk's return to Israel also was sought by Louk's wife, Nurit, 28, who has four children by him. She said: "I don't want to see him again... I just hope they bring him back early so I can get my divorce."

Irrevocable Decision Says Defence Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defence Secretary Robert McNamara says his decision to shut down 55 obsolete and surplus U.S. military bases and plants is "absolutely, unequivocally, without qualification irrevocable."

This statement by the defence secretary in announcing the decision Thursday allowed small hope that any of the strong protests from congressmen, governors and mayors would change his mind.

The only thing that might, McNamara told a press conference, would be some new evidence — "and the chances of that are damned small."

"We have made 574 decisions in this area in the last 3½ years, and we have not changed one yet."

The latest stroke of McNamara's economy scalpel cut at two naval shipyards employing a total of 17,000 workers, six bomber bases, army and air force training sites, arsenals, radar posts and other installations in 33 states and the District of Columbia.

In all, 80 bases in the United States and 15 overseas were put on the chopping block. The foreign bases, in Europe and the Western Hemisphere, were not named.

Sharp Hits U.S. Wheat Price Cut

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Sharp said today Canada will express its concern to the American government over a U.S. subsidy program for durum wheat which resulted in a price reduction.

But he wanted to make sure whether Canada would be justified in levelling an accusation against the United States that the action violated international agreements.

He told the Commons during a series of questions about the American government subsidy program that Canada has advised the U.S. of its desire for greater stability in wheat prices.

But he said he hesitates to agree with opposition charges that the American government has broken international agreements in its action.

Former Conservative agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton touched off the questioning by asking what action the government has taken as a result of the American decision to subsidize wheat at 38 cents a bushel, contrary to international commitments.

Mr. Sharp said the Canadian government is "very concerned" over this development and had made this known to the U.S. There was a heavy world surplus of durum wheat.

Big Scale Attacks Gain Little

SAIGON (AP)—Every couple of months the South Vietnamese general staff stages a mammoth operation like "Brushfire One", now in progress in a Communist base area northwest of Saigon.

U.S. military advisers don't approve. They say that results will never be worth the tremendous expenditure of men, money and planning. But they can't stop it.

"After all, this is a Vietnamese show," one senior U.S. officer commented. "We can advise against this sort of thing, but if they insist, there is nothing we can do about it."

South Vietnamese officers say such operations disrupt Viet Cong supply lines, fortifications and communications; and that they raise the morale of their troops and of the population in the area.

But seldom do the grand-scale military operations result in an engagement with the enemy. Brushfire One is no exception.

MISSED ENEMY

A total of 7,000 men have not had an exchange of fire with the Viet Cong. The operation has tied up troops and helicopters all around the Saigon area.

American officers say experience has shown that success of military operations in Viet Nam tends to lessen as they increase in size.

That is why U.S. advisers suggest small unit actions constantly deploying handfuls of soldiers in Communist areas, playing the guerrillas' own game.

The Vietnamese high command just won't forget the military principles it learned at Saint Cyr (the French military academy). They still fight this war on a conventional basis," a U.S. adviser complained.

One of the main problems is that the enemy usually finds out about big operations well in advance. Hardly a village was left in the Brushfire area when the troops landed. American advisers said they must have known what was coming.

Underlining the American argument for quick, small operations, the South Vietnamese defence ministry reported today that three such attacks Thursday near Da Nang, in Quang Nam Province, resulted in 72 Viet Cong dead and 43 captured.

announced by Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, as the council began the final working day of its 1964 session.

He was quoted as saying, the declaration would be dealt with at the next council session, possibly as the first matter on the agenda. The next session is expected to be held late next year or in 1966.

The council also gave overall approval 2,054 to 64 to a three-chapter ecumenism decree aimed at fostering unity among the world's 900,000,000 Christians.

Together with the decree De Ecclesia (on the church), it will be promulgated and issued to the world Saturday by Pope Paul.

However, conservative and progressive prelates clashed on whether the church should soften its strict rules on mixed marriages. The council then voted 1,592 to 427 to turn the whole question over to Pope Paul.

'BEATS' BORE TEEN-AGERS; U.K. SURVEY

LONDON (UPI)—British teen-agers are getting bored with beat music. But they are still buying the records of the Beatles and similar groups for want of something better.

That's the verdict today of a nationwide survey conducted by Britain's popular music experts. They made the study because of poor attendance at live performances by beat musicians in recent weeks.

On the religious freedom declaration, it was Cardinal Tisserant who announced Thursday that the council presidency, a steering committee of 12 cardinals, had decided not to hold a vote on the declaration at this session.

The revolt of the bishops was the most sensational development since the council first assembled on Oct. 11, 1962.

The decision was greeted with "flat silence," a council spokesman said.

Referring to the petition calling for the Pope's intervention, the cardinal said many of the council fathers were "deeply pained" that the voting had not taken place as scheduled.

He nevertheless pointed out that the decision by the commission of cardinals to postpone the vote was taken in strict accordance with the rules of the council.

Although Pope Paul rejected the petition, he sent word to the council that it would be definitely taken up at the next session, "if possible as the first item."

CONGO APPEAL RENEWED

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today he hopes concerted appeals for the safety of prisoners held by Congolese rebels in Stanleyville will be fruitful.

He confirmed in the Commons, in reply to a question by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, that Canada has joined the United States, United Kingdom and Belgium in appealing to India to use its good offices to ensure the safety of the prisoners.

This was the second appeal made by Canada, Mr. Pearson said.

Canada Lauded At Conference For Soft Loans

LONDON (CP)—The 21-country Colombo plan ministerial conference ended today with agreement to continue the Southeast Asia aid program for another five years and to hold the next annual conference in Pakistan. Canada was praised for launching a big program of 50-year "soft" loans.

Reports emerging from the four-day meeting showed India's delegation praised Canada's Colombo plan aid and the new program of 50-year "soft" loans which carry no interest charges as "truly great." India said it hoped other advanced countries "will take their cue from Canada."

Ceylon referred to Canadians as "a generous people" and described the Canadian "soft" loans — which will amount to some $50,000,000 for all recipient countries — as demonstrating leadership which shows "a sympathetic understanding and appreciation" of the problems faced by the underdeveloped countries.

Even the United States, the world's biggest foreign aid contributor, took note of Canada's program, expressing "admiration" and suggesting the broader Canadian effort will "help reinforce our own will and commitments in the United States."

RENEW PROGRAM

The current over-all aid program is due to expire next year and the ministers agreed to another five-year renewal with plans to review the scheme in 1969. The Colombo plan is designed to provide grants, loans, technical assistance and training by the wealthier countries to help lift living standards in the impoverished areas of South-east Asia.

AT UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA

Student Boom Outpaces Buildings

University of Victoria is a drawing-board jungle.

And it is giving local planners a king-size headache.

As fast as blueprints for new buildings roll off the drawing board, the student population increases.

Problem is that enrollments are building up faster than new premises can be built.

Discussing this problem Thursday, university president, Dr. Malcolm Taylor said when the move is made from Lansdowne to Gordon Head, the new buildings will be inadequate.

The move is scheduled for 1966 but by that time the buildings will have reached maximum saturation point.

PREPARE NOW

Said Dr. Taylor: "This means that this very year we must prepare plans for classrooms, laboratories, offices, over and above those already on the drawing board."

Speaking to Victoria Rotary Club, Dr. Taylor said future expansion will be swift and dramatic.

Already the university rates twenty-first among the 44 recognized universities and colleges of Canada.

Dr. Taylor described it as having "suddenly reached maturity—it is no longer a small college."

He said: "We have already a reputation for the high calibre of our teaching—it is one of our great assets."

"In certain areas we have a reputation for first-rate research."

MAJOR INDUSTRY

Speaking of economics, Dr. Taylor said "what we need to appreciate is the fact that in Victoria the rapid growth of the university is the equivalent, economically, of the growth of a major industry."

"... Operating costs of the university (this year), almost $4 million, will return to this city in the form of houses built, bought or rented, clothing, furniture, cars, groceries, taxes.

"... Capital expenditures of more than $1.5 million this year are accounted for by payments to local contractors, merchants, suppliers, architects, engineers, and all those workmen engaged in the design and construction and furnishing of buildings.

"Next year we begin a $6 million expansion program."

It was not hard to see, from these figures alone, that there was a good case for education as an investment, he said.

'Help a Hungry Child'

ONCE AGAIN DR. LOTTA HITSCHMANOVA, director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, has brought to this city of plenty an echo of the cry of hungry children and desperate parents in Korea. And once again The Daily Times offers its sponsorship of a Christmas season campaign by which the people of Greater Victoria may, as they have in past years, open their hearts and their wallets in a demonstration of good neighborliness.

In an address Wednesday night that launched the appeal, Dr. HITSCHMANOVA told of the many individual cases which she has encountered in her visits to Korea and other Asian lands—pitiful stories of illness or death from malnutrition; of parents driven beyond the brink of reason by their terrible inability to save their infants from cold and hunger; of little children who, without outside help, have no hope of ever breaking free of the trap of desperate poverty in which they were born.

But these people can be helped. As Dr. HITSCHMANOVA proved by her moving words and moving pictures, the contributions of Canadians have brought food, clothing, medicine and education to many unfortunates in Korea. Even more important, they have brought new hope and a new will to live to thousands of men, women and children for whom death appeared as a welcome friend rather than an enemy.

These people are across the Pacific Ocean from us, but they are our neighbors. From our own good living we cannot conscientiously deny them a helping hand and a chance to gain at least a foothold on this earth.

The Times is therefore happy once more to invite contributions to this worthy cause at its Douglas Street office, and will provide receipts for all money received.

A Selling Job for Oak Bay

OAK BAY COUNCIL HAS DECIDED to follow Victoria's lead in asking the support of its property owners for a capital improvements budget. Saanich is also considering such a program.

This is a means of spreading costs of major work over a reasonable period of years and thereby avoiding a dismaying increase in the tax rate.

In Oak Bay's case it is also a means of evading an inherited difficulty. The municipality needs, among other things, extensive street improvements. Its residents have shown an unwillingness to pay for them through local improvement taxes because those taxes have already been paid, in most cases years ago, for the services which must now be brought up to modern standards and good repair.

Changing times enforce a new method of financing if Oak Bay is to have the amenities currently considered essential.

The program planned by the council calls for an expenditure of $1,250,000 over the next five years—$250,000 a year—and could be raised by pushing the mill rate up 1.3 mills for the next 20 years.

This is not an excessive request to residents of the municipality, but it demands some effective politics on the part of the council—much better politics and public relations than the council displayed recently when the property-owners turned down the ambitious recreation centre project.

To win approval the council must convince the voters of the desirability of considering the municipality as a whole, without regard to the parts which will benefit immediately from the improvements, or it must arrange the improvements in such a way that all localities will receive direct advantages from the work.

Geography complicates the task. Residents of the southern section of the municipality, for instance, are more directly concerned with good city roads on which to drive to the downtown area than they are, perhaps, with good roads in the northern section of Oak Bay, which they might use only infrequently.

This is one of the problems created by the switch to the capital works program financing from local improvement taxation. In previous times, those who wanted improvements paid their share toward the costs. Now all property owners are being asked to shoulder the charges, whether or not they can foresee direct personal benefit in the work.

No doubt the program should be implemented. The first step must be the approval of the qualified voters. That approval will depend largely on the interesting political experiment Oak Bay must undertake in the next few weeks, to convince all its people of their stake in the program.

Protect the Goldstream Run

THE CONCERN EXPRESSED over the flow of Goldstream and the effects that fluctuations may have on salmon spawning there reflects a growing and encouraging interest by the public in conservation.

Whether or not sufficient water is being released by the authorities to facilitate spawning, or to maintain in healthy condition the eggs already deposited, is a question for experts.

If they remain moist enough, the eggs should hatch eventually, provided heavy run-off from the watershed in the months ahead does not silt up the spawning beds or scour them out with fatal results.

The fish which have been fighting their way upstream there are mainly chums—a species of relatively little importance to sports fishermen. But their preservation is important, not so much for commercial purposes, but for the intangible values that have grown through human interest in this autumnal migration.

People want to see the salmon perform their heroic rushes upstream. At no location close to Victoria is this miracle of the season more easily watched than at Goldstream. If, for any reason, the runs were to be eliminated a serious loss would occur, even if the loss cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

Because this is the case, it is imperative that what feasible human action can be taken to protect the salmon should be taken. A major factor in that protection would be proper regulation of the stream flow—a physical control within the ability of the water authority. And in this connection it may be noted that the new tunnel and pipeline now under construction should make much more water available for Goldstream by eliminating the large transmission losses of the present line.

Beyond this, of course, is the possibility of stimulating the propagation of sporting species, a resource of increasing economic significance. That is a matter to which the federal fisheries might well give attention.

Its basic interest may continue to be the preservation of salmon as a commercial crop, but the department cannot ignore the very material contribution sports fishermen make to the economy—sports fishermen who live on lower Vancouver Island and those who come here as tourists drawn by the attraction of good fishing grounds.

The Bouquets Pour In

IT WAS GRATIFYING TO HEAR the expressions of appreciation voiced by French municipal leaders for the hospitality extended to them by the city of Victoria—and for the leadership Mayor Wilson gave the community in this effort.

It is equally pleasing to note the recognition expressed by the North Cowichan councillor who says that "Mayor Wilson has done a fine thing for the whole of Canada" in this imaginative and highly successful enterprise.

Mayor Wilson no doubt is flattered by such reactions. His gratification may be further enhanced by the knowledge that all Victorians are proud of the accomplishments of the man they chose for civic leadership.

Praise from outsiders is good. Praise from those closer to home, from those who know him well, could be even better.

—Bierman, Victoria Daily Times.

FROM LONDON

Why the British Buy and Sell Russian

BRITAIN'S trade with the Communists appears destined to be a permanent fly in the ointment of British-American relations. The new Labor government is moving quickly to expand this controversial commerce.

President Douglas Jay of the Board of Trade, flew to Moscow and Peking almost as soon as he took office. He has invited the Chinese trade minister to London. "We must not neglect the opportunities, such as they are," Jay told the House of Commons last week.

Only one detail of Jay's policies regarding East-West trade is known so far. He is determined to press the Soviets, who have just contracted to buy a $252 million plastic plant on long term credit, to increase their purchases in Britain.

The British, hungry for raw materials, have bought almost twice as much as they have sold in their Russian dealings over the past five years. The Soviets maintain that the imbalance is compensated by their purchases of wool in Australia and rubber in Malaysia. But the renewed concern over the pound has led Jay to press the Soviets to buy more generously in Britain's home market.

Key Reason

This need for Russia's timber and materials is a key reason why the British Foreign Office, although sensitive to criticism of her trading policies, will continue to liberalize them. Britain lives by trade—some 16 per cent of her national income depends on it.

The annual commerce of some $900 million with the Communists accounts for only a small share, less than four per cent, of Britain's world trade. But she is unwilling to make any concession to the thesis that trade should be limited by politics. She observes the CoCom embargo against the sale of strategic items but she is always anxious to narrow the list.

The British totally reject the American policy of denying trade to bring down the Castro government in Cuba. "Why we even bought claret from the French during the Napoleonic wars," they say. British businessmen don't relish the red tape in Havana and the market for Cuban cigars is limited by the Jamaican supply. But commerce with Cuba has almost doubled in the past two years.

It is important to understand that popular sentiment here on trade with the Communists presents a strong contrast to the prevailing attitudes in the United States, where an imported Polish ham can become a political issue. Here the public protests when the government denies an export licence to a firm that is patently affiliated with the Communists.

Fear Import Flood

The chief British resistance to trade with the Sino-Soviet bloc arises from a fear of being flooded by alarm clocks, bicycles, and other Communist manufactures at outrageously low prices. A barrier of quotas was initially imposed but these are being dropped as the bloc governments agree to respect the capitalist pricing structure. One Communist official joked that it will always be necessary to keep at least one capitalist country in the world in order to establish a fair market value.

The potential scope of this trade has other limitations. The Communists are bilateral traders while the British prefer multilateral arrangements. The Communist producers are not geared to sell and service mechanical equipment on a competitive basis in the West.

But the British attest the integrity of the Communist nations, including the Chinese, as traders. The Soviets, now sharply cutting their imports in order to balance off last year's grain purchases, are regarded as comfortably conservative in their economic thinking. The Communist traders have been sufficiently faithful to their commitments to be accepted in Britain as first class commercial risks.

Controversial Policy

This bright view of the Communists as credit risks has led the British government into the most controversial phase of its trading policy: the guarantee of credits up to 15 years on bloc purchases. This step has brought strident protests from the Germans and a competitive scramble by the French and Italians.

The British say they are willing to negotiate a five-year limitation on the guarantee of credits if the United States will agree to abandon the guarantees by the Export-Import Bank in the non-Communist countries. British companies complain that these Ex-Im guarantees have cost them many sales.

The British argumentation for East-West trade is elaborate. A fat Communist is less menacing than a hungry one. Exposure to the profit system will erode Communist faith in Marxism. The West may learn from Communist technology. The satellites' dependence upon Russia will be weakened by trade with the West.

But the fundamental point, which will guide the policies of the Labor government, is that Britain needs this trade and intends to have it.

Voices Of Quebec

It is important in these times that Western Canada should know what the people of Quebec are thinking. These translated excerpts from Quebec editorials are provided (through Canadian Press) to foster better understanding. Selected English-language editorials are similarly reproduced in Quebec papers.

Quebec Le Soleil—

Premier Lesage's visit to France gained him, in addition to contacts with financial circles which may be interested in investing in Quebec, an agreement in principle with General de Gaulle on the subject of cultural exchanges between France and Quebec. The agreements deal above all with education. . . .

The agreement in principle is aimed at setting up in a more regular and systematic way improvement courses in France for Canadian teachers. On the other hand, French teachers will come to Canada, where their presence will help meet the great need being felt here for qualified teachers at the secondary school and university levels. . . .

The development of the means of communication permits closer cultural relations between Canada and France. It is normal that the French-Canadians are trying to make use of them by renewing the links with France, the home of French culture in the world. The growth of French culture in Canada can only benefit. There are no political implications of any kind . . . only closer cultural relations. . . .

It is obvious that the French teachers coming to Canada will have to adapt to the programs here, to the mentality, to the standards of our teaching system; they must not consider Quebec as a vague annex to France. A few misunderstandings can be expected. But they are not insurmountable. And the French traditions of precision, of work, which French teachers could bring here are the kind of thing that will contribute to the value of our teaching.

Quebec L'Action—

The parliamentary session at Ottawa is beating all records for length. . . . It is also beating all records for impotence. Because of ridiculous, repeated evasions the Commons is paralysed. . . .

The confusion of our era, the complexity of situations and the flood of problems require strong governments everywhere. The confusion of the ordinary citizen can only be handled by governments that know where they are going. For months and months, Canada has had the weakest government since Confederation. . . .

"We must adapt or perish," Prime Minister Pearson said, in speaking of relations that must be created within a new federalism. But this great task is already compromised at the start by the lethargy of Parliament and by the hesitations of the government.

This is the case on the national flag. Statesmen worthy of the name would have known how to cut across the debate and would have rallied Canadians around a symbol of their unity, despite initial differences of opinion. However, the debate has rotted away in the Commons. . . .

What is most surprising is that the paralysis gripping Parliament on the flag question is, on the whole, the work of one man. When an organ of government becomes atrophied by the stubbornness and bad faith of a single person it shows its incapacity to adapt itself to the needs of the times.

Twelve-Storey Anger is Rising in Oak Bay

Bulkier than James Bay

If the Oak Bay Municipal Council decides to adopt a proposed amendment to Zoning Bylaw 486 the residents of Oak Bay will find that they will be faced with the construction of a high-rise apartment building of 12 storeys plus penthouse on Beach Drive. From information obtained from the municipal building inspector's office, the writer has learned that the total floor area of each storey of this proposed structure will run approximately 10,075 square feet and that the front of the building will run parallel to Beach Drive for approximately 155 feet.

A building of this size will be more than 50 per cent larger in bulk than the adjacent six-storey White House at 1173 Beach Drive.

It would be well if the ratepayers and residents of Oak Bay would remember that, in this instance, their council is seeking to ratify construction of a building which will be greater in bulk than most of the 12-storey high-rise structures now functioning in James Bay in the city of Victoria, in particular:

Bickerton Court, Douglas Street, 152 feet long, approximately 7,603 sq. ft. floor area.

First tower, Goodacre Towers, Douglas Street, 125 feet long, approximately 7,250 sq. ft. floor area.

Regent Towers, Michigan Street, 140 feet long, approximately 7,056 sq. ft. floor area.

The enormous Lord Simcoe Apartments on Simcoe Street has a length of 170 feet along Simcoe Street but only exceeds the floor area of the proposed Oak Bay structure by some 235 square feet.

There is little doubt that the high-rise building has its place in the modern metropolitan complex. However, the residents of each municipality must realize that in permitting their councils to pinpoint these structures at random and at the behest of developers they are immediately faced with problems inherent in sudden increases in population density. The immediate effect of an intensification of density is the increased cost of services. Such increased cost may or may not be offset by the increased taxation revenue obtained from these giant projects.

There are two other problems, however, that are of greater significance to the future of Oak Bay. The first of these is the problem of coping with the increased vehicular traffic egressing from these huge buildings. To date, the council has not made provision for arterial roads to siphon off the flow of traffic along Beach Drive. This traffic flow between the newly expanded Oak Bay Beach Hotel and the new Oak Bay Marina will be considerably increased driving hazards and noise level. The imposition of, at least, 80 or 90 resident cars in the same strip, will exaggerate a volume of traffic which is already unacceptable.

The second problem is even more disturbing. It involves the provision of additional shopping centres to serve the demands created by an intensification of population density. Such demands will undoubtedly place pressure on the Oak Bay council for the rezoning of residential property to commercial use. Should such rezoning be approved the entire texture and quality of this unique portion of Victoria would be destroyed. The infringement of commercial property in, heretofore, residential zones sets precedents which are almost always irrevocable.

Providing they are adequately sited high density developments are singularly suited to areas in need of reclamation. The Beach Drive area is not in need of reclamation and has a singular reputation throughout the continent as an area of quiet, residential beauty in which the individuality of each property lends to the total, unique atmosphere of the Oak Bay community.

I should like to suggest that those residents of Oak Bay who do not wish to see haphazard planning, including untoward commercial development and traffic congestion, contact their council (preferably in writing) before Monday, Nov. 23, to protest the spot zoning of property which benefits the few at the expense of the whole. I am sure there are others like myself who would prefer to pay some addition in property tax rather than lose the amenities of their neighborhood.

(MRS.) GLORIA E. WHELEN,
2631 Margate.

Hedged In by High-Rises

As is regrettably so often the case, the ratepayers who have voted in a council to look after their interests suddenly learn of proposed decisions, which affect their interests at the last minute when a decision is all but irrevocably taken.

In this instance a sub-amendment to a bylaw in the municipality of Oak Bay will permit a contractor to build a twelve-storey apartment house facing Beach Drive across from the Oak Bay Beach Hotel and bordering on the Oak Bay golf course.

Under the existing bylaw the building is zoned for twelve storeys, but the White House, a six-storey building (plus penthouse) fills the other half of the lot. There exists enough room to build a 12-storey structure, but to do so would be unprofitable under the existing law as it would require the builder to angle it in such a way as to make it unattractive to prospective tenants and to the community.

The contractor has another alternative under the existing law—he can build an apartment of seven or eight storeys, much more in conformity with his previous venture, and also more pleasing to the eye. But he does not want to do this. He wants a 12-storey building.

It was apparent after attending the meeting of the Oak Bay council last Monday night that the council, directing the affairs of one of the country's most attractive communities, is quite unprepared to have it remain attractive. The revee said that the area in question was zoned for 12 storeys and therefore such a building can be built and he indicated that he is quite prepared to lead the council in passing a sub-amendment permitting the building to face on Beach Drive.

He and his council could just as easily suggest and make a law that any building on that isolated lot should be in conformity with its neighbor, the White House, a most attractive structure in its own right, and which blends into the surroundings.

But this is only one case. Significantly, the council has no long-range vision of how Oak Bay ought to be developed. More important to the whole of Victoria is the protection of some of the most beautiful shore drives in the world. The hundreds of Sunday drivers who journey along Beach Drive today may well ask themselves how pleasant it would be to drive from King George Terrace to Glenlyon School between great towering blocks with only an occasional glimpse of the sea or the hills of Victoria.

There is a danger that this will be the case and I would suggest that the Oak Bay Council should be advised by local ratepayers and Victoria and Saanich residents alike of their fear that this may happen. Builders and speculators are notoriously uninterested in beauty, for as is all too evident, we live in a world where money is more important than things pleasant to the eye and mind.

J. C. M. OGELSBY,
2611 Margate.

DENNIS THE MENACE

From Our Files

Nov. 20, 1904—Chefoo: Japanese troops, continue to arrive at Dalny at the rate of 1,000 a day, indicative of renewed activity along the Shaka River before long.

Nov. 20, 1924—The death-knell of the personal property tax in B.C. was sounded today when Liberal Vancouver members of the Legislature pledged themselves to oppose the continuance of the levy.

Nov. 20, 1944—Brussels: Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg have all claimed a share in the military occupation of Germany.

To the Best Cash Use

In casting the deciding vote in favor of an apartment block shutting off the public view of the sea on part of Beach Drive, Reeve Cox of Oak Bay says he is "satisfied that the waterfront land is being put to the best use."

Since the apartment block will provide profits for the owners who will now peddle the view at a good price in rentals to tenants, and since Reeve Cox's coffers will also gain in taxes, it appears that for Mr. Cox the best use of our seafront land is whatever use yields the most money.

It follows that Reeve Cox should now build a high fence all along Beach Drive shutting off the view of the sea entirely. Gates could be installed at intervals with wickets, and the general public would no doubt gladly pay fat fees regularly for a glimpse of the seafront and harbor.

Think of the cash haul Reeve Cox could gain for his coffers from Sunday strollers along Beach Drive! This would certainly be putting the seaford land to the "best use."

"T.M.A. PHILISTINE"

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

WHO'S AFRAID of a general election?

Nobody. Or so it seems. Judging by the stumping of Liberal ministers, judging by the profusion of Liberal organizational meetings, Mr. Pearson is getting set for one. Once he has the Canada pension plan and the labor code and the flag it seems a certainty. Thus it could be as early as mid-March and most likely by Monday, June 7.

What argument would he base it on? How about the one John Diefenbaker used in 1958: "The present government is supported by 131 members out of a total of 265. Its position as a minority government has become intolerable. No other party or group in this House can possibly form a government; that I want to make clear. The only way in which the present situation can be effectively resolved is by the course I am about to announce."

There was outcry from the Opposition at the time but once the fact caught on that this was it, an election, the bleat of unfairness faded out. The public doesn't feel sorry for the Opposition.

But there is something that could arouse the public, now that the redistribution legislation is through at last. It makes an election fairly soon rather imperative and it sets up opposing pressures within the Liberal camp.

How Can They Lose?

It is the simple injustice of an election in 1965 under the population situation of 1951 when a postponement until 1966 will allow one under the census of 1961 and still two years within the five-year limit in a Parliament.

Nelson Castonguay, the representation commissioner and the one man who sits on every provincial redistribution commission, already has the rough maps drawn up which will apportion the ridings, using the tolerance agreed upon last week. If the various commissions get well along into their work, as they would be by next fall,

It would seem more and more unfair to have an election without waiting.

Remember that a wait has some temptations for the Liberals. Four Tory seats are sure to disappear since Saskatchewan alone is due to lose that many ridings.

There will hardly be a constituency in any province that won't be changed, and an almost unbelievable amount of reorganization will be necessary in riding associations. In fact, the pattern of federal electioneering will never be the same again because this redistribution finally throws over rural Canada as a major force.

A Change of Leaders

In such a new context the Liberal party has peculiar advantages in reorganizing, not the least of which is more money and a healthier party structure in more provinces. Therefore, it is hard to see how the Liberals can lose by waiting, except for one factor which is very significant to them.

This has been a government obsessed with John Diefenbaker and at this particular moment it feels that it has the leader of the Opposition in a terrible predicament. It seems apparent that there is more division and restiveness in the Conservatives out in the country about Mr. Diefenbaker than there was when his government fell and Harkness, Seigny and Hees departed. The Liberals believe (and I agree with them) that the reigning attitude of most Canadians is one that is extremely critical of the Tory leader.

Further, there seems to be a lull in the Quebec ferment for the moment and Jean Lesage has recently sounded a more complimentary note about the federal government. Thus the prospect of an election is bearable, even if Mr. Diefenbaker follows his "one Canada" line and berates the Liberals for kow-towing to Quebec. Better he should do it on the proposals for constitutional change whose parentage David Fulton has claimed, than have a long, tortuous debate in the next session of Parliament to put through the proposals.

'Job Building Main Problem For Quebec'

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec should worry more about creating employment and less about foreign investment in the province, Eric Kierans, Quebec revenue minister, said Thursday.

He told the Laval University Conference on Canadian Affairs that any policy which would exclude foreign investment such as "high tariff barriers or total socialism" would be shouldered by the "popular classes" because it would lead to higher unemployment.

Michel van Schendel, an economic writer for Montreal La Presse, said the main danger of United States investment is that it is concentrated only in the Montreal region instead of underdeveloped areas of the province.

Theme of the conference, sponsored by the Laval Students' Association, is "economic dependence and Canadian sovereignty."

Mr. Kierans said foreign investors are not acting as agents of foreign governments when they invest in Quebec. They invest because it is profitable to do so and do not escape from "political authority."

Mr. Kierans said the Quebec government cannot wait in many cases for Quebec enterprises to grow from small to large firms in underdeveloped areas of Quebec such as the Gaspé Peninsula and north shore of the St. Lawrence River.

Bonded Stock is in the best shape ever.

Our whisky doesn't come in those old bottles anymore. Those fine old bottles have launched their last sips. We've designed these new containers for Bonded Stock. Plus matching new labels. And we age Bonded Stock longer now as well. This makes every drop just a little more mellow. One thing though, Bonded Stock's smooth lightness we don't change. Our blenders know a good thing when they taste it. Judging from the number of people who buy Bonded Stock, so does the rest of the country.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS — There has been little change in the weather over B.C. for most of this week. Nearly all sections of the province have had overcast skies, and in many locations fog has been general. A weak disturbance in the Pacific has been edging closer to the Queen Charlotte Islands and will bring some light rain to most of the north coast region today and Saturday. The weather in the remaining forecast regions is expected to continue much the same as it has been in the last few days.

Churches Report Spirit of Unity

Council Delegates Astounded.
At Progress Toward Targets

By DON HARVEY

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The 15th meeting of the Canadian Council of Churches ended here Thursday with most of the 120 Protestant and Orthodox delegates and Roman Catholic observers convinced that a spirit of unity is drawing most Canadian churches closer.

It was astounded at the ecumenical spirit that permeated the meeting from the first day, Rev. John Martucci of Montreal, one of four Roman Catholic observers, said afterwards.

Many delegates were still talking with amazement two days after Rev. Kenneth Dietrich, a young priest of the Scarborough Foreign Missions Fathers and the first Roman Catholic ever to address the council, told it that his church now realizes "there are prophets outside the canonical boundaries of Rome."

REVIEW SPLITS

Father Dietrich said his church admits it was "largely responsible" for the splits in the 11th and 16th centuries which saw the Greek Church first break away, then the Protestant movement come into existence on continental Europe, and the Anglican Reformation sweep Roman Catholicism out of "official" England for a time.

"The truly magnificent thing about Father Dietrich's address was that he had his bishops sanction to come here and say what he did," said Rev. R. M. Bennett, secretary of the council's permanent overseas missions and evangelism departments.

The smooth deliberations of the council were only once on the brink of being ruffled.

A delegate from the Lutheran Church in America asked from the floor Wednesday for re-examination of the council's constitution so that his church might soon join. But the Salvation Army and Quaker delegates, among others, made no rejoinder.

QUESTIONS STATUS

Delegates explained that the significance of the Lutheran request lay in that church's inclination to regard the Salvation Army and the Society of Friends (Quakers) as religious organizations rather than as churches.

The Lutheran Church in America is one of numerous Lutheran groups which make up a North American federation. The federation will not allow its members to join a council in which membership is not restricted to churches.

But there were no hard feelings. Lt. Col. Morgan Flannigan, one of five Salvation Army representatives asked later to comment, laughed off the incident as insignificant in view of the "fine ecumenical spirit" that pervaded the meeting.

Mr. Bennett, who also serves on the council's executive committee, said the constitution will be re-examined before the next biennial meeting in 1966.

OPEN TO ALL

A significant departure from previous practice came when, at the request of Rt. Rev. George N. Luxton, bishop of the Anglican diocese of Huron, the council decided that nominations for membership on its faith and order commission will henceforth be opened to "all Christian churches in Canada," including the Roman Catholic Church, such "evangelicals" as the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada and the sects. None of the three is a member of the council.

State lotteries, amendment of the Criminal Code to permit the sale of contraceptives, the morality and behavior of university students, and the church's part in public education all came under consideration by the council.

The council elected Most Rev. H. H. Clark, primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, as its president for the next two years, succeeding Rev. D. W. Hay of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, who acted since June as the interim president after Commissioner Wycliffe Boothe, head of the Salvation Army in Canada, was moved to a new post in England.

POLITICAL PLUM CHARGED

THOMPSON

Thompson Home, Faces PC Head-Hunters

OTTAWA (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson had trouble getting home from Africa Thursday, and he may be in for more of the same in the Commons today.

Mr. Thompson, who was sent to Africa by the government in an attempt to secure freedom for 31 Canadian missionaries held by rebel forces in the Congo, had his return flight diverted from Montreal to Halifax by the first snowstorm of the season in the Ottawa-Montreal area.

He managed to fly to Montreal later in the day and took a train to Ottawa Thursday night.

While he was having his travel troubles, his 19-day mission to Africa was attacked as a "political plum" by a Conservative MP in the Commons.

The real reason for Mr. Thompson's trip was for a reunion at a school he helped found in Ethiopia, said Clifford Smailwood (Battle River-Camrose).

External Affairs Minister Martin told the House the latest news from The Congo indicates the situation of the 800 hostages held in the rebel capital of Stanleyville has reached a new danger point due to disintegration of authority among the rebels.

WORKED HARD

He said messages about Mr. Thompson's efforts, especially from the United States government, show no one worked harder than Mr. Thompson to bring about release of the hostages.

On his arrival in Ottawa, Mr. Thompson said the hostages were in "no immediate danger from the rebels," but this situation could change quickly if the rebel leadership changed hands.

He said the threat of the rebel leaders losing control made it vital that the International Red Cross, which has had air transportation available since September, enter Stanleyville.

He said he had personally contacted several governments to help set up a meeting today in Nairobi of representatives of the 16 countries who had nationals among the hostages.

During the hour delay at Halifax, Mr. Thompson said he received no direct word from the Canadian hostages, and "there is no hope at the present time that the rebels will release the hostages."

The situation remains critical, he said, as the hostages are being held for blackmail. But it would be to the advantage of the rebels to keep them alive.

"As long as they have them, they have a bargaining point."

Most of his direct contacts in Africa were with members of the Organization for African Unity.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Retailers may still obtain first-class sales clerks for the Christmas rush, National Employment Service said Thursday.

More than 500 clerks have been placed in seasonal jobs to date, NES manager George Davis said.

But because time is drawing short, a full survey of retailers is not possible, he said, inviting stores to contact NES with any staffing problems.

Greater Victoria Family and Children's Court offices will be moved from basement quarters in the Cook Street health and welfare building to 1527 Coldharbour Road Monday.

Court sessions will still be held in the Cook Street building until the end of November.

The move is designed as a one-year stop-gap while the municipalities decide on permanent quarters for the court and staff.

The Coldharbour building previously was used as a juvenile detention home.

Winners in the fourth game of Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club's six-week series were:

Series A. Douglas Hawkes and Paul Smith, first; Fred Hallett and Bill Simpson-Baile, second; Jack Goldie and Eric Ware, third; Liliane LeButt and Joe Lukas, fourth; and Dorothy McConnell and Bill Browne-Cave, fifth.

Section B. Anne and Earl Dye, first; Marianne Powell and Pat Bishop, second; Molly Collins and Bill McConnell, third; Les Isaacson and Harry Rolis, fourth; and Keith MacKenzie and Don Auld, fifth.

Senior non-commissioned officers of First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, will hold a Sadie Hawkins dance Saturday in the Sergeants' Mess at Work Point Barracks beginning at 9:30 p.m.

The dance will have a hillbilly theme and members and guests will dress informally.

Three destroyer-escorts of the RCN's Second Canadian Escort Squadron will visit two Washington state ports in early December.

The visit will be made for recreational purposes following two weeks of intensive exercises off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

HMCS Fraser and HMCS St. Croix will tie up in Tacoma, while HMCS Qu'Appelle secures in Everett, Dec. 3 to 7.

The Canadian Guild of Health will meet at St. John's Church parish hall, on Quadra Street, Thursday at 2 p.m.

Rev. M. Dobson will address the meeting on "The Logical Health Shop."

along the Douglas Street side of the renovated, newly painted building.

Engineer Kenneth Reid said lights would be placed in the arched window niches to shine upward from sills on first and second floors.

Parts of the north and south sides of the old structure will also have amber "floods."

Floodlights will be located on the roof to illuminate the clock tower, and a lighted Christmas tree may be placed on the centre balcony at the front.

Mr. Reid said the new wing would not be part of the special lighting plan, but there may be some special decoration around the Pandora doorway.

City council allocated about

$2,000 for special illumination, most of which will go to installation costs. Mr. Reid said some of the new wiring could be put in permanently and adapted to future use.

DIRECT HIT ON COLORADO

CREEDE, Colo. (UPI)—A U.S. Army Pershing missile on a test flight from Texas went out of control Thursday and crashed with a thundering blast in the mountains of southwestern Colorado.

It was the second missile crash this year and took place within 100 miles from where an air force Agena went down near Durango, Colo., last February.

Creede is a town of about 350 persons ringed by 13,000-foot mountains and currently nearly snowbound.

Officials said no explosive materials were involved.

APPOINTED director of the Bedford Institute of Oceanography at Dartmouth, N.S., is Dr. William L. Ford, 51, who was superintendent of the Pacific naval laboratory at Esquimalt from 1955 to 1959.

Castro Suspends Red HAVANA (Reuters)—Premier Castro Thursday announced suspension of leading Cuban Communist Joaquín Ordoqui from his post as vice-minister of armed forces pending investigation into his "political conduct" since 1957.

Youth Admits Raising Ruckus

Halloween hooliganism was admitted by a youth in city police court Thursday.

Robert Moffat, 422½ Craigflower Road, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance, and violating a municipal bylaw by swearing in public.

He will be sentenced Friday, when another youth charged because of the same chain of circumstance is to be sentenced.

The court was told Moffat was walking in the neighborhood of Bambern Park on Halloween with two other youths, shouting obscene language about neighborhood residents and police.

Later that evening, the court

Sex Rule Outraged Dictator

WASHINGTON (AP)—Italian dictator Benito Mussolini was outraged at a minor Nazi official's ruling in 1941 that it was worse for a German girl to have intimate relations with an Italian ally than with an English enemy.

The incident, an abusive one for a short while in feelings between the wartime axis partners, came to light Wednesday with publication by the U.S. state department of captured enemy documents covering the second half of 1941.

An Italian laborer working in Germany had intimate relations with a German woman who, as punishment, had her hair cut off and her face smeared with asphalt.

Italian officials asked the local Nazi boss for an explanation and were told:

"A mixture is undesirable in any case, but the mixture of the blood of a German girl with a foreigner of related blood, such as workers from occupied territories (Norwegians, Danes, etc.) and even enemy nations (English) is preferable to mixture with foreigners of alien blood (the Italians are to be included in this category)."

Freer Flow of Capital Urged by Steel Head

TORONTO (CP)—Economic advancement for both Canada and the United States depends ultimately on the freer flow of capital and goods over their border. Roger M. Blough, chairman of United States Steel Corp., said Thursday.

He told a joint meeting of the Canadian and Empire Clubs that any attempt by a nation to be self-sufficient industrially

"is the height of economic folly."

"Neither of our two countries, with its own raw materials, its own capital and its own domestic market, could possibly provide or support the production of all of the things that its people insist upon having."

He challenged the idea that increasing the flow of trade and capital would lead to Canada losing its sovereignty.

"Merely doing the things that foster trade, provide jobs, open markets and stimulate growth of Canadian business will not impair sovereignty one iota."

Truck Being Loaded at Vancouver

CEYLON BOUND

Everything Needed For Airport Loaded

'MORE FISH PER YARD THAN ANY OTHER PORT'

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia fishermen are selling catches of cod and sole in the United States because Vancouver doesn't have enough space to handle them, Boyd Shannon, president of the Vancouver Wholesale Fish Dealers' Association, said here.

He told city aldermen during a tour of Fishermen's Wharf that B.C. catches are being taken to Bellingham and Blaine, Wash., because of overcrowded conditions here.

"Vancouver handles more fish per square yard than any port in the world," he said.

The aldermen were investigating complaints of inadequate, cramped facilities at the wharf, which was described as an insult to tourists.

Mr. Shannon said merchants were more interested in selling fish than attracting tourists.

FROM POWER PROJECTS

Money to 'Rain' On Eastern B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Columbia River hydro development will rain about $100,000,000 on eastern B.C. region businessmen in the next 20 years, British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority economists said Thursday.

The economists, J. P. Arnold and D. T. Thompson, in a study of the effects of 10 hydro projects in the area, said enterprising businessmen should be able to capitalize on the multi-million-dollar payrolls in communities near the projects.

They estimated that about $1,000,000,000 will be spent on the projects, of which about $300,000,000 will be in salaries for workmen. Of this amount $100,000,000 would be spent in the Columbia region—an average of $5,000,000 a year.

They said that although the figures appear high they will not be enough to cause inflation. They also said the projects will not bring undue pressure on the labor market.

BENEFIT REVELSTOKE

The economists said construction payrolls on the Mica Dam and Revelstoke dams, to be built on the Columbia River north of Revelstoke, will mainly benefit Revelstoke.

The area from Trail to Kaslo will feel the impact of the Arrow, Duncan, Murphy, Bonington, Brilliant, Kootenay, Canal and Seven-Mile projects.

In the Revelstoke area, workers are expected to spend about $3,000,000 a year between 1966 and 1969, and $5,000,000 a year from 1970 to 1981.

The economists said spending in the Revelstoke area is expected to total about $65,000,000 over the total construction period. This would be equal to bolstering the economy of the area with 30 new industries, each employing 20 men earning $5,000 annually.

The amount spent locally by workers in the Trail-to-Kaslo area is forecast to average $4,000,000 annually from 1965 through 1969 and $1,000,000 between 1969 and 1984. Total expenditure would likely reach $35,000,000 during the construction period.

East Firms 'Shocked' By Mac's Price Cut

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Eastern newspaper producers said Thursday they were shocked by the decision of Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. to cut newsprint prices $10 a ton.

They said they had been hoping newsprint prices might soon turn upwards.

The Macmillan Bloedel Company, which is the biggest newspaper producer in B.C., announced it will cut its price from $134 to $124 a ton to help forestall erosion of its newsprint market.

The price of newsprint has been unchanged across Canada for the past seven years.

SHARES SLUMP

The Macmillan Bloedel move caused paper shares on the Toronto Stock Exchange to slump and one investment house said several eastern Canadian pulp and paper companies would suffer a fall of about one-quarter in earnings per share, based in 1963 sales, if the price reduction spread.

P. E. Roberts, president of Abitibi Power and Paper Co. Ltd., said the B.C. price cut was unwarranted in the light of economic conditions. He said Abitibi has no immediate plans for a price reduction.

The chairman of another large eastern paper company, G. M. Hobart, of Consolidated Paper Corp. Ltd., said the price reduction did not make economic sense and that his company did not intend to follow the move.

Eastern financial experts are speculating that Macmillan Bloedel's price cut is aimed at discouragement of new competition from the U.S. position.

Others suggest the big B.C. company is attempting to force a rush by eastern Canadian mills into B.C. where production costs are lower.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The 10,000-ton freighter Evagelistris will have an airport on board when she sails from here today for Ceylon.

Not a completed airport, naturally, but everything necessary to build one—from condensed milk for some workers to screwdrivers, stone crushers and cement trucks.

Believed to be the most diversified cargo ever shipped from a British Columbia port, the thousands of tons of equipment and materials will be used to construct the Canadian-financed airport in Katunayake, Ceylon. The airport is a Canadian contribution to the Colombo Plan.

When the Liberian freighter leaves here, cargo experts will leave a sigh of relief, including Pete Richardson of Johnston Terminals Ltd., on whose shoulders fell the job of keeping track of the thousands of individual items.

The airport contract was awarded to Tallman Construction Co., of Winnipeg, but Johnston Terminals was named consolidation contractor with the job of seeing that all material was available at the dock ready for loading.

ITEMS ENDLESS

Mr. Richardson said he had no less than 225,000 pounds of miscellaneous items to account for.

He said that since all spare parts and smaller items were almost certain to be pilfered on arrival in Ceylon, they were loaded into 40 dump trucks and metal screens were clamped over them.

In the ship's holds are 8,000 tons of cement, barrels of asphalt, deep freezers, refrigerators, dump trucks, graders, rock gas cylinders, smaller equipment and food supplies.

On deck are rock-crushing plants and huge diesel shovels.

FISHERMEN END STRIKE

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia herring fishermen agreed Thursday to end a strike and return to the fishing grounds.

The fishermen voted 94.4 per cent in favor of accepting a medical plan proposed by the Fisheries Association of B.C., the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (Ind.) announced. Fishing will resume Sunday.

Cranbrook Gets Pulp Mill

VANCOUVER (CP)—Plans for two multi-million-dollar pulp mills, one in the B.C. interior near Cranbrook and the other at northern Prince George, were announced here Thursday.

Canal Development Ltd., announced plans for a $35,000,000 kraft pulp mill at Canal Flats near Cranbrook, 80 miles east of Nelson, with an initial production of 350 tons a day.

The announcement came following a statement by Intercontinental Pulp Co. Ltd., confirming its plans for a $65,000,000 mill at Prince George.

An application by Intercontinental for timber to support its mill will be heard in Prince George Jan. 8 by Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston. The Canal application for timber rights comes up Jan. 15 at Cranbrook.

Victor C. Brown, president of Canal and its parent company, Crestbrook Timber Ltd., said Thursday Canal is still negotiating for a partner with pulp know-how and markets.

His firm will seek pulp harvesting rights in the Crown forests of Cranbrook, Creston, Kinkasket, Fernie, Upper Kootenay and Windermere.

Intercontinental, a joint subsidiary of Prince George Pulp and Paper Ltd., and Feldmuhl AG of Dusseldorf, West Germany, plans a 600-ton mill. It will be the third largest mill in the area.

Prince George Pulp and Paper, owned by Canadian Forest Products Ltd. and the Reed Group of Britain, is constructing an $84,000,000 mill at Prince George. Northwood Mills Ltd. is erecting a $70,000,000 pulp mill in the same area.

Buses From Japan

VANCOUVER (CP)—The first Japanese buses ever sold in Canada were unloaded here Thursday.

The Nissan diesel buses have been purchased by the Edmonton Transit system. The 48-passenger vehicles will be shipped to Edmonton via CNR.

Intercontinental will apply for timber rights in the sustained yield units of Takla, Peace, Moberly and Blueberry.

The company said the mill would be in operation by 1968 and employ 325 men.

It said the mill's entire projected production of kraft pulp had already been sold through commitments—the first time in British Columbia that "100 per cent of production has been sold before startup."

Team Spirit 'Achieved' in Russia

WINNIPEG (CP)—A greater degree of co-operation between government and business in Canada was advocated Thursday by James A. Richardson of James Richardson & Sons, Limited.

Reduced Grilse Limits, Less Commercial Time Proposed

Investigations over the past two years are expected to result in reduced grilse limits for salt-water sports fishermen and less time on the water for commercial fishermen.

In an effort to reduce catches of immature salmon, officials of the federal fisheries department have proposed new regulations that would cut the sports limit in half to four salmon per day. Present regulations allow an angler eight salmon and grilse, only four of which may be over three pounds.

Aim of the proposals is to increase the poundage of the overall catch by taking fish later in their life cycle, when they are considerably heavier, and to curtail the harvest of smaller salmon in Georgia Strait and waters on the east coast of Vancouver Island.

New regulations would allow four salmon per day, all over 12 inches.

In the past 16 years, anglers have seen daily limits sliced from 10 fish to the present four. A few years ago the 12-inch minimum size went into effect.

Commercial boats have been taking more young salmon in recent years.

Information on the proposed changes is being distributed to commercial interests and sports fishing groups. All are invited to send comments to the Pacific Area Director before Dec. 7.

Proposals will be discussed at a meeting of the sports fishing advisory committee Monday at Vancouver.

It is proposed that in District No. 1 and Areas 13 to 19 inclusive (the Vancouver Island east coast from Campbell River to Beechey Head), no commercial fishing would be permitted from Oct. 1 to April 1.

However, the Pacific Area director could authorize fishing to harvest stocks of mature salmon during that time.

In Area 20 (from Beechey Head to the Bonilla line north of Port Renfrew) it is planned to ban commercial trolling from Nov. 1 to April 14.

In Areas 13 to 20 it is proposed the date for taking coho (blueback) salmon be set back to July 1 from the current June 15 opening.

The recommendations have resulted from a two-year investigation and a series of tagging programs on spring and coho salmon.

Studies indicate springs and coho in the Gulf of Georgia are being harvested to the maximum and competition for the fish is resulting in an increasingly early harvest and smaller fish.

The total commercial trolling harvest in the Gulf of Georgia has remained around 300,000 coho annually, but the number of fish taken early in the season is increasing, studies indicate. Commercial boats are believed capable of taking up to 70 per cent of the annual coho harvest in the first four weeks.

Numbers of sports fishermen have increased but the annual catch has levelled off, with the higher number of coho being caught early in the season.

Investigations show that during the early summer of their final year, coho salmon gain about a pound each month.

Mullins and His Birds Conduct Hoop Forum

Basketball, the way the experts play it will be explained and demonstrated to fans and players tonight and Saturday at Central Junior High School.

Conducting a basketball forum will be Dr. Peter Mullins, head coach at the University of British Columbia. Mullins will use his UBC Thunderbirds to demonstrate offensive and defensive tactics in a 35-minute program.

Later, fans will be able to judge how well the Birds follow the Mullins' basketball book. They tackle Victoria Haida Chiefs at 9.

The same program will be repeated Saturday night at the same times when the two senior men's teams complete their two-game series. First half of the Saturday games will be under Olympic rules.

The two-night program is being sponsored by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce. Admission will be 50 cents and the Jaycee clown basketball team has issued a challenge to any and all amateur clubs for a short game on both nights.

Chiefs Tumble To Lowly Gaels

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's CYO Gaels won their first game in the Inter-City Senior Men's Basketball League Thursday night, ending a four-game losing streak by defeating Victoria's Haida Chiefs, 79-74.

Gaels led all the way but had to hustle to make their 44-30 half-time lead stand up. Chiefs were only seven points behind starting the last quarter but couldn't quite make up the deficit.

Big reason was the absence of Darrell Lorimer, one-half the Chiefs' one-two scoring punch.

The other half, big Pete Simmons, was in his usual form as he cashed in for 28 points but Lorimer was badly missed although Bill Wilson came up with a 13-point evening and John Devlin clicked for 14 points.

CALLING SIGNALS for opposing clubs in sudden-death Vancouver Island juvenile football final tonight at Royal Athletic Park will be quarterbacks Kent Yaniv (top) of Nanaimo Redmen and Bob Wicks of Oak Bay Farmers. Game time is 8:30.

Trade Winds Blow In Major Leagues

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's inter-league trading period opens at midnight tonight with Dick Stuart, part of a major deal two years ago, possibly on his way back to the National League.

Stuart's name is one of many that have been suggested as principals in transactions that may take place between National and American League clubs in the next 25 days, or until midnight Dec. 15.

Trading is expected to reach its peak if there is a peak during the major league meeting in Houston starting Nov. 30. Only four deals were completed between the two leagues last year compared with 14 in 1962.

Stuart, controversial slugger with Boston Red Sox, is said to be headed for Philadelphia Phillies need a long-ball hitter for another shot at the NL pennant. In return, the Phillies would give up a pitcher, either right-hander Art Mahaffey or south-paw Dennis Bennett.

Stuart went to the Red Sox from Pittsburgh Pirates in a four-player trade in 1962. Among other names being tossed around in trade talk are Jim Gentile, Vada Pinson, Bob Allison and Ed Matthews.

Gentile, after one season with Kansas City Athletics, is reported to be headed for Houston. Cots in exchange for a pitcher, someone like Dick Farrell or

JEAN MARIE VERY HAPPY

Arms fly high and Jean Marie Cossette leaps in jubilation after scoring opening goal for Seattle Totems in Western Hockey League game Thursday night at Los Angeles. Goalie

Jack Norris and Norm Johnson (12) of Blades hit ice in vain attempt to prevent goal. Johnson, however, had last laugh. He scored winning goal in overtime as Blades edged Totems

Johnson's Overtime Goal Trips Leading Totems 4-3

LOS ANGELES — Los Angeles Blades had to work overtime to do it, but they finally managed to trip Keith Allen's high-flying Seattle Totems.

Blades' 43 victory over Totems here Thursday night, courtesy of Norm Johnson's goal at 5:34 of overtime, marked the first time Los Angeles has been able to beat Seattle in this Western Hockey League season.

Teams played to a draw and Seattle won two other meetings.

The league leaders blew this one. The Totems led 1-0 after the first period and were ahead 3-1 at one stage of the third before goals by Brian Smith and Harold White forced the league's ninth overtime game of the season.

Gord Haworth scored Blades' first goal while Jean Marie Cossette, Bill MacFarland and Bill Dineen scored for Seattle.

Los Angeles winger Marc Boileau and Seattle defenseman Larry Hale sparked some third-period fireworks with a brisk slugging match, after Boileau and Seattle goaltender Jim McLeod exchanged shoves. Players from both teams milled around but officials kept the melee from spreading. Boileau and Hale sat out five-minute fighting penalties.

Two games are on tap tonight. Victoria Maple Leafs make their first visit of the season to San Francisco while Portland Buckaroos play at Vancouver.

'We Want That Grey Cup Dough'—Luzzi

No Celebration For Stampeders

VANCOUVER (CP) — "We want that Grey Cup dough."

Tackle Don Luzzi of Calgary Stampeders was explaining Thursday why there was no celebration after the team's 14-10 victory over British Columbia Lions the night before.

He was talking of the $1,500 bonus each player on the winning Grey Cup team receives. And he was indicating the mental attitude of a club that has been exuding confidence.

The Stamps evened the best-of-three Western Football Conference final at one game apiece when they defeated the Lions—to the surprise of no one on the Calgary team. Lions had won the first game 24-10.

While the Lions continued to shake their heads over Wednesday night's mistakes, Stamps went through light workouts in preparation for Sunday afternoon's third and final game starting at 2 p.m. PST.

Workouts Short

Players only had a short workout Thursday and had another short one scheduled for Saturday. Friday there would be a slightly longer signal drill. Dobbis says the practices are for loosening up only. He said the team is in fair condition. Ron Payne and second-quarterback Jerry Kepling were shaken up Wednesday night but are on the mend.

Kepling completed three of four passes before limping off with a badly bruised knee, but he was running easily during the Thursday workout.

Lions' coach Dave Skrien bemoaned the "terrible offence" his club displayed. "The expected fog didn't arrive (at the stadium) but some of our boys played like they were in one all night."

Game films showed no team breakdown, Skrien said, but "some players didn't do their jobs."

"The problem was one of individual mistakes," he said.

Beaumont a Worry

Neil Beaumont's injured knee was a cause for consternation for the B.C. coach during Wednesday's game. The Western Conference's top punter got away only two good boots in the game, and the knee got banged up even more.

Beaumont will be in action Sunday, but his effectiveness will be a doubtful factor in Lions' planning.

Skrien was dismayed with the lack of protection afforded Joe Kapp, even when the big quarterback was operating out of the shotgun formation.

"He was harassed by both the linebackers and the middle guards. We have run into trouble this year with blitzing linebackers but we haven't seen those middle men pouring through like they did Wednesday."

Air Canada, Greyhound and CPR officials report a flood of enquiries about Calgary-to-Vancouver connections, and the Stampeders office has been flooded with ticket requests for the deciding game.

Haynes Suspended

LONDON (AP) — Johnny Haynes, former captain of the English national soccer team, was suspended for 14 days today for misconduct in a game between Fulham and Sunderland last month.

MORAL SUPPORT

Mammoth Rally Backs Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — An offensive lineup spearheaded by drum majorettes, cheerleaders and bands will back both Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders deep into their own ends tonight on the eve of the second game of the Eastern Football Conference finals.

The Ticats will scrimmage cautiously with the clamorous crowd in front of a downtown hotel before heading for the tall timber to hole up for the night.

The Riders won't even venture beyond the suburbs until close to game time at 10 a.m., PST Saturday.

The event that is sending both teams scurrying for cover is a mammoth rally by Hamilton fans intended to bolster the morale of the Tiger-Cats, who trail by 17 points in the two-game, total-points series as a result of a 30-13 setback in Ottawa last Saturday.

Cheerleader Ralph Sazio and his banding Grey Cup champions will show up to be introduced to their well-wishers when the rally starts at 7:30 p.m. Then, guarding against the possibility that the revels might infringe on their sleeping hours, they'll head for an out-of-town, hide-away.

With the same thought in mind, general manager Red O'Quinn isn't disclosing where he plans to billet the Riders tonight.

Both clubs had good news from their medical wing. Flanker Whit Tucker, who missed the last two games because of a troublesome sciatic nerve in his back, now rates as a possible starter for Ottawa and offensive end Stan Crisson of the Ticats appears to have shaken a charleyhorse that hobbled him in Ottawa last Saturday.

Fullback Art Baker and halfback Willie Bethia, both banged up in the first game of the final, remain on the uncertain list in the Hamilton offensive backfield with linebacker Bobbie Kuntz and bench-warmer Bobby Guters slated to replace them if needed. Joe Zuger, out for seven games with a bad shoulder, may replace injured defensive back Jackie Simpson.

The other two overnight stops will be at Port Arthur and Regina.

Ouch!
Jim Jamieson tripped while cavorting around the Central Junior High field earlier this week, and the pain was clearly felt by the entire Victoria United team.

Jamieson suffered a severe ankle sprain. The medics wrapped Jamieson's ankle in a plaster cast and Pacific Coast Soccer League boosters stamped the likeable centre forward as the circuit's hard-luck guy of the year.

Jamieson found the pain bearable but for Frank Grealy, United's coach, it was excruciating.

THEY NEED HIM

There hasn't been a centre forward of Jamieson's ilk around Victoria since United rejoined the PCSL company some four seasons back. The former UBC star seemed to be the one to solve United's problems and fulfill Grealy's dreams.

A week before the regular season started, Jamieson suffered a kidney injury that kept him out of the lineup until last Saturday. Then, he sparked as United and Vancouver Canadians played to a 1-1 draw.

"More important," Grealy points out, "he gave United an added lift and instilled greater confidence into the lineup."

Then it happened...

POSSIBLY A MONTH

Jamieson will sport the cast for two weeks and it will be at least a month before he may be pronounced fit to return.

"There's no doubt we'll miss him," said Grealy, "but the boys have been coming along very well. There's no reason why they can't win Saturday as long as they play like they have during the past two weeks."

Grealy sends his charges against North Shore. As the fates would have it, these are the teams deadlocked for fifth spot in the league tables.

Ash Valdal, regularly an inside, will play centre forward.

CUP FINAL DELAYED

District League officials have decided to delay the McGavin Cup final (injured players' fund) between Canadian Scottish and Brodies. It was to have been played Sunday.

Instead, activity will be confined to regular league play.

Highlight of Sunday's full schedule is a Topaz Park clash between Kickers and Price and Smith, currently running 1-2 atop the first division.

Third-place Wests will meet fourth-place Brodies on the Central Park field. Navy plays Esquimalt at Naden, and Scottish face Gorge at Heywood in Sunday's other first-division matches.

In the second division, Oak Bay tackles Dunlops at Beacon Hill Park, University's Vikings will entertain Wanderers on the Gordon Head Campus, and high-flying Oak Bay Marina plays Gorge at Windsor Park. All matches start at 2 p.m.

On Wednesday night Ramsey moved Ron Flowers from wing half to centre, seen by some experts as a somewhat desperate move.

Ramsey also must make a decision about the 4-2-4 system. This pattern of play, adopted by many continental sides, has never found general favor in England, though a number of managers, including Ramsey himself, have experimented with it.

If Ramsey has his problems, so do the administrators of the game.

The two main bodies in England, the Football Association and the Football League, took their first step this week toward checking the growing misconduct on the pitch and hooliganism among the crowds by setting up a special investigating committee.

The financial plight of many small league clubs was highlighted by the announcement that fourth division Barrow would have to go out of business in two weeks.

England Needs A Centre Half

LONDON (Reuters) — England's soccer manager Alf Ramsey, who is hoping to steer his team to its first-ever World Cup victory in 1966, is already faced with a load of problems.

He learned little Wednesday night, when his much changed, injury-riddled team just managed to beat Wales.

He badly needs a strong, commanding centre-half capable of inspiring the whole defence.

On Wednesday night Ramsey moved Ron Flowers from wing half to centre, seen by some experts as a somewhat desperate move.

Ramsey also must make a decision about the 4-2-4 system. This pattern of play, adopted by many continental sides, has never found general favor in England, though a number of managers, including Ramsey himself, have experimented with it.

If Ramsey has his problems, so do the administrators of the game.

DITCH HARD HELMETS, GRID PLAYERS ADVISED

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Safety-conscious football players should do away with hard helmets and ditch the face masks, says a brain surgeon.

They're no good.

Dr. Richard C. Schneider of the University of Michigan, told a congress of neurological surgeons Thursday he has analyzed 225 fatal and very serious football injuries. About 76 per cent of fatalities, he said, are head and spine injuries. Of the 225 cases, only three were attributed to pre-existing conditions.

"Everyone has the idea that the more rigid the helmet, the more protection. That is wrong. A softer helmet with more give would soften the blow or contact."

"Without face masks boys would play safer," he said.

Labor Code Plans Get Blast

By DON HANRIGHT
OTTAWA (CP)—CNR President Donald Gordon has sharply criticized the new federal labor code, still before Parliament.

He said that in many ways the bill "seems to produce some utterly impractical situations between employees and management."

Mr. Gordon's remarks were made last week in a closed labor-management conference sponsored by the Economic Council of Canada.

The council shortly will publish speeches at the conference, along with a series of research reports on labor-management relations in Europe, the United States and Canada.

The head of the Crown-owned CNR was commenting in the conference on one of these research reports when he diverted from his main theme, to say in part:

"The labor standards code incorporated in Bill 126 now before the House of Commons is an instrument of social policy, with the apparent aim of creating more jobs and raising living standards, but it cuts deep into the scope of collective bargaining and has significant effect upon the cost structure of labor-intensive industries."

IN RIGID MOULD

"And I might add that it serves to reduce the possibilities of co-operation precisely because it places that part of industry which is under federal labor jurisdiction in a rigid mould shaped by government and not by the parties."

"This I believe to be wrong. Moreover, it appears to have lost the reality that co-operation makes possible: for Bill 126 in many ways seems to produce some utterly impractical situations between employees and management."

The federal bill would apply to all labor areas under federal jurisdiction, including railways. Also affected will be shipping, air transport, interprovincial trucking, communications, banking, uranium mining, grain elevators, feed mills and certain crown corporations.

Its key provisions: A minimum wage rate of $1.25 an hour; a standard eight-hour day and 40-hour week, with time and a half for overtime; eight general holidays with pay, and two weeks annual vacation with pay after every complete year of employment.

Mr. Gordon did not single out provisions of the bill in his criticism. However, he said:

"No one would deny the right of government to make policy in the area of labor relations, but everyone has a right to expect that the implementation of policy will be realistic and take full account of its impact on the working facts of employee groups."

Stabbing Victim Fails to Identify Accused Trio

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jerry Dwayne Bakewell, 19, an American sailor who was severely wounded in a fight here Sept. 3, Thursday was unable to identify three men suspected of stabbing him.

The three, Wallace Luthje, 22, Robert Smith, 21, and Jerry Mielke, 22, all of Richmond, sat among court spectators while Bakewell was asked to identify the men who attacked him.

After a careful look around the crowded magistrate's court Bakewell said, "No, I don't see anyone."

The three are charged with possession of an offensive weapon and intent to wound causing bodily harm. All have pleaded not guilty.

'Great Society' Not Just Dream: Johnson

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson, returning to his college of 34 years ago, defended his "great society" concept today as realistic and attainable. He said it is "not an idle dream or vague Utopia."

Johnson was making a sentimental journey to San Marcos, a city of 13,000 some 50 miles southeast of his ranch home near Johnson City.

It was at San Marcos State Teachers College in 1930 that Johnson received a bachelor of science degree. The campus has been renamed Southwest Texas State College, and a new college president, James H. McCrocklin, was being inaugurated today.

In his text, Johnson set forth two broad goals for the "great society" program he hopes will become the central theme of his administration's efforts:

1. "We must strike down the barriers which limit the hopes and achievements of some of our people." He mentioned racial discrimination, poverty and lack of educational opportunities.

2. "We must move to enlarge the horizons of all Americans." He said "the ultimate test of any society is the quality of the men and women it produces and the quality of the life they are permitted to lead."

CREDIT SYSTEM SOUGHT

Money Troubles Plague West European Nations

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Western Europe has run into a wall of economic difficulties in its long march toward unity. Its prolonged boom also seems heading for trouble.

Talk is even heard of a general slump in world trade from such men as Britain's new prime minister, Harold Wilson. Wilson will seek President Johnson's support when they meet next month for a radical new system of international credit that will allow a freer flow of money and goods.

There is immediate peril that Western Europe's two chief trading groups—the six-nation Common Market and the seven-nation European Free Trade Association—will break up because of actions by key members.

A longer-term peril lurks in the possibility that the European boom will play itself out. To safeguard themselves the nations might then adopt protectionist policies. As trade contracted markets shrank and unemployment spread, the Europeans and their trading partners would slide into a slump.

Already there have been ominous pointers.

In most industrial countries of West Europe, excepting West Germany and Sweden, imports are outstripping exports, leaving a trail of trade deficits.

PREDICT SLOWER GROWTH
A survey by Common Market economists recently forecast a tapering off to the average European growth rate from 5.5 per cent this year to four per cent in 1965.

If this, as the experts say they expect, coincides with a slowdown of American expansion after nearly four years of high riding, a contest for world markets may develop with ever growing intensity.

In the Common Market, French President de Gaulle recently threatened to walk out if the Germans did not come to terms with France soon on a common grain price. France, with cheap wheat, wants to sell more to her partners. West Germany's Christian Democratic government, with subsidized wheat farming and a general election next fall, does not want cheap wheat dumped on its doorstep.

In EFTA, Britain's new Labor government took the drastic step of putting surcharge on almost all manufactured imports while offering tax cuts to exporters. The aim was to bring earnings into line with spending and so head off bankruptcy.

Big international loans, cuts in national spending, higher taxes, and curbs on wages and profits are on the British slate but have still to make their impact.

The 15-per-cent import charge has hit Britain's EFTA partners, whose exports already are sagging. Foreign Minister Per Haekkerup of Denmark warned that EFTA may collapse unless the levy is swiftly scrapped.

Even without Wampo, Lungnak and Trashi Phub,

Seagram's V.O. is still the largest-selling Canadian Whisky in the world!

There are towns in Tibet where no V.O. is sold. But these are greatly outnumbered by the cities, towns and hamlets in 130 countries where V.O. is sold. In fact, more Seagram's V.O. is sold throughout the world than any other whisky exported from any country.

Why? We think it must be the quality of the product.

The mellow flavour of Seagram's V.O. combines brilliance of taste with lightness of tone—and this balance of good taste never varies.

As a result, V.O. is enjoyed by a world of people from Karachi to Killaloe. So remember...V.O., V.O., wherever you are!

STUDENTS HOLD PROTEST MARCH AGAINST U.S.

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—An estimated 500 students staged an anti-American "March on the White House" here Wednesday night, but President Marco A. Robles succeeded in averting the threat of violence.

The crowd dispersed peacefully when Robles appealed to the students to keep calm and have confidence in his conduct of foreign affairs. There was no casualties or damage.

Canada Urges Larger Role For Europe

PARIS (Reuters)—A member of Canada's ruling Liberal party expressed doubts Thursday about the military effectiveness of the U.S.-proposed multilateral nuclear force and called for a greater European share in the military direction of the NATO alliance.

Jean-Eudes Dube, Liberal member of Parliament for Restigouche-Madawaska, told a session of the NATO parliamentarians' conference here that NATO should also seek new political solutions to meet the changes which have come about since its inception 15 years ago.

MILITARY CONTROL

Dube said Canadian forces, as other NATO forces, would not achieve their maximum usefulness unless NATO's defence policy rests on an agreed strategy and military control and on control of relations between the civil and military spheres.

The Canadian, who heads his country's delegation to the conference, said the political and economic rebirth of Western Europe has resulted in a growing demand for greater European participation in the Atlantic alliance.

He said that even if the present proposal for an MLF is accepted and even if the principle of multilateral participation is desirable, the plan to arm merchant vessels with Polaris missiles might not be ideal, either from the military or political standpoint.

'Do It Again? No Thanks.' Says City Seafaring Man

By MARGE GILROY
An old sea dog took time out this week to recall some of his adventures along the west coast of B.C.

He capped them by saying: "I wouldn't do it again for all the money in Canada." Just how old the sea dog is, nobody knows.

Capt. John Joseph Moore says he is 92 since he has "no memory of the days when I wore girl's clothes."

His baptism certificate is dated 1899. How many more years than 95 he should claim is a mystery.

On Saturday his family will help him celebrate his 97th birthday, take or leave a year, at 1738 Leighton Rd.

Capt. Moore is the descendant of a sea-going family, from the Isle of Man, and at the age of 13 he went off to sea as a fisherman around the coast of Britain.

During the Boer War he was in the British Naval Reserve, but was never called into action.

The First World War saw him on the Atlantic coast in the Royal Canadian Navy and during the Second World War he was master of the hydrographic survey ship William J. Stewart as it plied the waters of the west coast.

Capt. Moore came to Canada in 1906. In the years before he joined the survey service he worked on the ocean-going tug, Jolliffe. He towed huge sailing ships in to Victoria and Vancouver harbors.

Except for his fishing career, Capt. Moore has always been a steamboat man. That was the way he preferred it. Even at that he wasn't always happy.

His adventures included exploration of every nook and cranny along the west coast and in the days before radar they were true adventures.

"Once we came down from Rupert to Vancouver in the fog, and only caught a glimpse of land half a dozen times all the way," he said.

Going up the inlets in the fog, they blew the whistle, then counted off the seconds, waiting for the echo to determine their distance from the treacherous rocks.

Only once was he shipwrecked. That was the year he retired, 1943.

A troopship was having trouble bucking the tide around Ripple Rock, and in an effort to give it a wide berth Capt. Moore's ship hit the rock, took on water and sank. No one drowned and later the ship was beached.

Luck was always with him. Before coming to Canada he escaped being drowned in a ship bound for Australia by being called to court.

He had been offered a job on the Australia-bound ship, but at the last minute was called as a witness.

The next day the ship went down in a storm. All hands were lost.

'Youth Anonymous Should Continue'

CHATHAM, Ont. (C.P.)—The congregation of Park Street United here should continue the youth program initiated by a minister who has been sentenced to prison for contributing to juvenile delinquency, Rev. J. R. In an address to the 10th annual conference of evangelism, Mr. Hord said the congregation "should deliberately make plans to continue Youth Anonymous, a program which seeks to help 'teen-agers who have had a brush with the law.'"

Give The Gift With A Lift... The Berry Automatic Garage Door Opener, with radio controls. Your loved ones can open and close the garage door with a push of a button... and from within their car. How? By having a Berry Automatic installed on their garage. With a Berry operator you drive up to the garage and push a button on a compact hand transmitter that can be clipped to your or dashboard. The garage door goes up... lights go on... drive in and push the button again. The door is closed and you're in a safe, dry, completely enclosed area. No worry about late night prowlers, bad weather, slipping on ice or straining your back. And your garage door is always closed—no money garage interiors for friends and neighbors to stare into when away from home. Why not enjoy the convenience and safety of a Berry Automatic, the Gift that Keeps on Giving All Year 'Round.

FREE $249<sup>00</sup>

'TIGHTEN SECURITY ON DEVIATES'

MONTREAL (UPI)—Two Toronto psychiatrists Thursday advocated the establishment of separate institutions where sexual psychopaths could be treated.

Such separate security facilities, they said, would fill a loophole left in Canadian laws. Under the legal definition of criminal insanity, deviates frequently cannot be detained until they actually have inflicted physical harm on their victims.

The recommendation for new security provisions which could be incorporated in wings of existing mental hospitals was urged by University of Toronto psychiatrists Drs. Ronald Stokes and Edward Turner in papers submitted to the fourth research conference on delinquency and criminology here.

The two noted that "names such as... Heathman and Dion arouse intense feelings in society" because their crimes involved the death of children.

The psychiatrists were referring to Leopold Dion, now appealing his conviction for the sex-killing of four young boys in Quebec City, and Charles Heathman, of Vancouver, who was released after courts had exhausted legal ways of detaining him in the death of a 10-year-old boy.

But still "the sexual deviate who tended to inflict serious physical harm upon his victim was rather uncommon," they said.

The doctors said medical science and law faced a dilemma in the case of a patient-offender, defined as any person who has in the past or tends toward, the inflicting of serious personal harm upon another person as a result of a mental disorder.

"Their behavior is seldom altered by incarceration," they said.

Signing Role For Commons Hit By NDP

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party Member of Parliament for Winnipeg North Centre, said Thursday night Prime Minister Pearson is following "a dangerous line" in making treaties with Canada's provinces and then bringing the agreements to Parliament merely for approval.

He said the prime minister's actions may be thought of as providing provincial rights, but "there is a danger of ruining national unity and confederation if we follow this course."

Mr. Knowles said in an address to more than 100 Huron College students that Parliament is the body that makes the actual law, and it should not merely sign treaties handed to it.

He also said Mr. Pearson is not facing up to the conflict between Quebec and the rest of Canada.

"That conflict should be cleared up. We are in danger of ruining national unity and confederation if we follow this course... We need strength at the centre."

Canada Seeks NATO Shuffle

Martin Urges New Look In Bid To Maintain Unity of Allies

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said in the Commons Thursday a "fresh examination" of proposals for a multilateral nuclear force is needed to avoid a perilous confrontation with allies.

He was reviewing problems facing the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He said Canada agreed with France that no hasty decision should be made when a program is not immediately required.

A delay in a decision on the force, which would have 25 merchant ships manned by mixed NATO nation crews and equipped with Polaris missiles, should be allowed in any case to permit the newly elected British government to review its defence policy.

Mr. Martin asked proponents of the force—the United States and West Germany—whether this is the only way to give European members a greater degree of participation in NATO military decisions.

The external affairs minister also said Canada supports British and United States demands that the Soviet Union, France and other nations pay debts to the United Nations for peace-keeping expenses, but the government hopes a compromise can be worked out so no country will lose its General Assembly vote.

SIGN TREATY

He suggested Communist China sign the nuclear test-ban treaty as a first step to possible entry into disarmament discussions, which would be incomplete without that country.

Canada's policy on UN membership for mainland China remains predicated on "the preservation of the integrity" of Formosa, he said. Canada would take an "unequivocal" stand on the question of recognition after weighing all the factors.

Mr. Martin was speaking during the day-long external affairs debate during which he defended the government's decision to send Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson to Africa in an effort to free Canadians trapped by rebel forces.

Thursday night in the Commons the Conservative party failed to chop Canada's $350,000 Colombo Plan donation of wheat flour to Indonesia.

A motion to cut the donation because of Indonesia's aggression against the Federation of Malaya, a Commonwealth member, was defeated 48 to 33 in the Commons after External

Court Test Planned for Zone Bylaw

An application to quash an Oak Bay zoning bylaw will be heard before the Supreme Court of B.C., Dec. 4.

The application which concerns the Merston property, south of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, was filed Wednesday by Edwin A. Popham on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Ian Ross and Mr. and Mrs. Massey Gooden.

The Merston property was rezoned for apartment use by Oak Bay council following a public hearing held in the municipal hall, Oct. 19.

The application to have the bylaw quashed is made on the grounds that there were many persons who, for various reasons, were not given the opportunity to be heard at the public hearing as set out in the Municipal Act.

Affairs Minister Martin strung out the debate long enough to muster voting support.

While Mr. Martin spoke in opposition to the motion put forward by Wallace Nesbitt (PC-Oxford), Liberals were summoned into the House from the government lobby.

Minority party members, with the exception of Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena), backed the government. Lone Conservative to vote against the motion was Paul Martin (Pontiac-Temiscamingue).

The vote was held about 40 minutes after the usual 10 o'clock adjournment hour as the external affairs minister attempted to win approval for all his departmental spending estimates.

The bulk of the department's $124,000,000 spending program for 1964-65 was approved but the debate ran aground on the external aid item that included the aid to Indonesia. The debate continues today.

When Liberals stood to vote against the motion one Conservative shouted: "Sukarno's boys."

Mr. Martin asked the Conservative MP to withdraw the motion.

He said Mr. Nesbitt "cannot have reflected seriously" before moving it and added that his proposal would be "taken seriously in certain circles."

No wheat flour had been sent while the matter is being studied, Mr. Martin said, but Australia, New Zealand, Britain, France and the United States were donating non-strategic supplies and it was a "collective judgment that this aid should not be terminated."

Weapon Use Hinted By Prints on Bottle

A flattened palm-print found on a beer bottle indicated it had been gripped very tightly, as if used as a weapon, the B.C. Assize Court was told Thursday afternoon.

The bottle was found in the bush off Prospect Lake Road where Nicola Zegaric, 24, was beaten, robbed and left unconscious on Sept. 10 last.

Corporal Robert C. King, a fingerprint expert with the RCMP, said the ridges of the palm print he found on the bottle indicated it had been gripped with "extreme pressure."

He was giving evidence at the continued trial of Garry McWhirter, 22, of Sooke, and Rodney Leason, 22, of 1300 Gladstone, Victoria. They are charged with causing Zegaric bodily harm by beating with intent to wound, robbery and theft of a car worth more than $50.

Corporal King said his tests showed the palm impressions on the bottle were made by Garry McWhirter.

Defence counsel Robert A. Price challenged the suggestion that a flattened palm print indicated the bottle had been used as a weapon.

FLATTENED PRINT
"There are a number of ways in which a flattened print could be left," he said,

'NO TROUBLE AT ALL' SAYS EX-ASTRONAUT

GLENN at jet controls

EL TORO, Calif. (AP)—Col. John H. Glenn climbed from the jet trainer and grinned happily "Great," he said. "No trouble at all."

It was just a two-hour jaunt in a jet trainer. But it was Glenn's first solo flight since last January, when he announced he was retiring from the Marine Corps to run for the Senate in Ohio.

Then, in February, he fell in his bathroom and injured the labyrinth of his left ear. He suffered dizzy spells which sidetracked both his flying and his political ambitions. He withdrew from the Senate race and wasn't pronounced fit to resume flying until a month ago.

Evasion Charged On Pension Level

The federal government's rejection of more money for retired civil servants was termed "a masterpiece of political evasion" today.

The national secretary-treasurer of the Federal Superannuates National Association, Fred Whitehorse, 2696 MacDonald Drive, also called the government's replies "most unsatisfactory."

Prime Minister Pearson's comment that to grant the increases would be to discriminate against others "can only be construed as political expediency."

The retired civil servants, in their working lives, built up a fund now standing at about two billion dollars.

Superannuates were aware the government has had use of this money. Interest credited in the last financial year—$66 million—"was sufficient to cover all commitments of the fund leaving a surplus of more than $14,000,000."

Mr. Whitehorse said the prime minister's reply gave the erroneous impression that taxpayers are supporting pensions of retired civil servants.

CONTRIBUTIONS

According to the Glassco royal commission, the equal government contributions now are in arrears for $652 million "which have been recorded as deferred charges and remain to be charged in future years."

The government's refusal to tie the pensions to the cost of living, while proposing at the same time to do this with the Canada pension plan, "can only be regarded as discriminatory and inconsistent in principle."

The association believed if its requests were put before Parliament, MPs who voted to increase their indemnities would not deny the same benefits to their former employees—funds adequately available.

PRESS MEET

Reporter Freedom 'A Must'

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A New York newspaper executive warned Thursday against adoption of any code that might restrict the freedom of reporters.

Clifton Daniel, managing editor of the New York Times, spoke before the 31st annual convention of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association.

Daniel's talk was essentially a reply to criticism of the press by the Warren commission.

The commission objected to mass coverage methods following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and recommended creation of ethical standards to prevent any interference with criminal investigations, court proceedings, or the right of individuals to a fair trial.

Daniel said codes of conduct are practically unenforceable, although news organizations should consider whether there are steps they can take to avoid interference in the administration of justice.

He also said "we must do nothing to lessen competition, initiative and aggressiveness in pursuit of the news."

There might be times when the pooling of news personnel was necessary for major events, but "let's have it understood from beginning to end that we believe in freedom of the press and freedom of access to the news and that we will not circumscribe ourselves or allow others to circumscribe us except where the necessity is clear and immediate."

PROVINCIAL CONTROL MEANS 'DEATH'

Indian Beauty Wants Gov't Scalps

OTTAWA (UPI)—Indian beauty, Kahn-Tineta Horn, is on the warpath again, and she's after the collective scalps of the federal government.

The striking black-haired beauty, a highly successful model, was scouting around the capital Thursday, drumming up support for a new cause—she's trying to block federal plans to transfer jurisdiction over Canada's native population to provincial governments.

"If you don't want to live up to your treaty obligations give us back our country," Miss Horn said in an interview. "If we come under the provinces it's our death."

The government is planning a plebiscite on whether it, or the provinces should be responsible for Indian and Eskimo affairs; but Miss Horn insisted that her people should not be asked if they "want to live."

Miss Horn charged the provinces were engaged in a conspiracy to steal Indian reserve lands under the pretext of a jurisdictional transfer.

Hi Pat.

H'llo Mary Lou. Well I'll be darned. Aren't you frozen sitting there in your pyjamas?

Nope. It's nice and warm in here.

By the way, what ever happened to the little bomb.

We outgrew it. So we bought this new Studebaker. Now everybody fits into it. Funny how Jim and Mike grew so suddenly. And Julie. There was hardly any room for them, let alone their schoolbooks. (They liked that.)

Can I come in and get warm for a minute? It's cold in my car.

Come on Pat. And hey, look. Isn't it amazing how a car so trim could be so huge inside?

There are lots of other big cars.

I know, but that's not all. Take last winter. The old car must have been tested in the Sahara or something. Seven mornings out of ten, it just wouldn't start. Studebaker has been tested in Canadian blizzards, so you know it's going to start on a freezing cold day. Can you imagine me sitting in the wee car with my pyjamas on? I'd have turned blue.

Yes, but haven't European cars got better brakes and things? After all, they're built to slam around all over the place.

Studebaker has disc-type brakes. You can't have better in an emergency. Honestly Pat, I can't think of anywhere I feel safer.

You know, Mary Lou, I guess sports cars and Studebakers are kind of the same. They're both unique.

Right. Except Studebaker's a sight more comfortable. A sort of kindred soul. Why don't we switch places, and you drive it for a while Pat? See for yourself. ①

OVER EJECTED DETECTIVES

Police Cut Ties In Hassle

NEW YORK (AP) — Police Commissioner Michael Murphy announced Thursday that he has broken off relations with the Jersey City, N.J., police department because two New York detectives were thrown out of town.

A Jersey City official countered that if the detectives returned and behaved the same way again, "we'd run them out of town again."

The break in relations was caused by an incident Tuesday night.

Two New York detectives, accompanied by an FBI agent and a New York state trooper, drove to Jersey City to keep an eye on visitors to the Mariner Funeral Home there. Inside was the body of Cornelius J. Noonan, 67, who died last Saturday. Noonan, a waterfront union leader, long had been suspected of knowledge of numbers rackets on the piers.

Murphy said the Jersey City police department "had been informed beforehand that our men would be there."

Nevertheless, it was claimed, Jersey City Police Chief Joseph Smith, in civilian clothes, cursed the New Yorkers and reportedly assigned Jersey City police in a radio car to escort them to the Holland Tunnel and make sure they entered it.

The Jersey City spokesman said persons entering the funeral home observed the men in the car snapping pictures and complained to the director, John Marinar.

The spokesman said Marinar's son went to the car to see what was going on and was told by one of the detectives: "Mind your own business or we're going to put a bullet in your head."

Murphy said the hums-rush treatment of his men was unheard of. "Until there is an explanation of this incident, we're withdrawing the use of our facilities from the Jersey City Police Department."

'OPERATION BEACONLIGHT'

LBJ 'Taken In' by Fancy Scheme

NEW YORK (AP) — Even President Johnson, innocently thought it was a great plan to prevent high school dropouts—but it was a front for a fraud, says New York State Attorney-General Louis J. Lefkowitz. It was called Operation Beaconlight and this, Lefkowitz said this week, was how it worked: The National Art League, a non-profit organization, would provide an etched picture of a high school building for $2.50.

A successful alumnus would be persuaded to lecture the students on the desirability of staying in school, and present each one with an autographed etching.

The student, looking at his etching from time to time, would be encouraged to keep hitting the books.

Johnson, as vice-president in 1963 and as president this year, presented etchings to students at his old school in Johnson City, Tex.

KNEW NOTHING OF FRAUD

Lefkowitz said his investigation shows that Johnson had no knowledge of the fraud behind the National Art League or of the criminal background of its chief promoter.

Lefkowitz said Operation Beaconlight was the brainchild of Warren Hunter, who has spent nearly 20 years in prison and is under $25,000 bail awaiting sentence for failure to answer a subpoena in the case.

Hunter was known to President Johnson, Lefkowitz said, under one of his nine aliases—Warren K. Kenyon.

Lefkowitz said the National Art League was the front for Hunter's National Art League Service, which printed the etchings at "a fantastic profit."

In addition, the attorney-general said, Hunter sold $500,000 of worthless stock in the operation, victimizing elderly widows, some of whom he promised to marry.

Hunter used Johnson's participation as his chief sales pitch, Lefkowitz said.

The attorney-general obtained a court order directing five officers of the league or its companion company to appear in court Jan. 6 with all books and records.

Ontario Town Ends School Segregation

COLCHESTER, Ont. (CP)—Admitting that School Section 11 has "long suffered segregation," the Colchester area B. public school board has declared its determination to eliminate segregation in its area.

Promise to improve physical conditions at the all-Negro school was made after a five-hour meeting Wednesday night at a committee of the South Essex Citizens' Advancement Association and the board. The issue of segregation was raised by the association a month ago in a letter to the board.

At the conclusion of the meeting, which was closed to the press, board chairman Allen McLean and George F. McCurd, representing the association, issued a joint statement.

Improvements provided for in the statement include new lighting, interior decorations, improved janitor service and improving the building so it will comply with recommendations of the medical officer of health.

Horrors! Bard Works To Get Rewrite Job

LONDON (AP) — Britain's National Theatre has hired poet Robert Graves to rewrite Shakespeare.

Anticipating cries of horror, it explained that the rewriting will be confined to the comedies. The idea is to get the jokes across to a modern audience.

"We wouldn't dream of touching the tragedies," a spokesman said.

Graves already has made about 300 changes in Much Ado About Nothing in preparation for a new production opening Feb. 8. Mostly he has changed single words which have lost their Elizabethan meaning or become obsolete.

Discover becomes disclose. Proposing becomes conferring. "Break with you" becomes "broach the matter with you."

Some changes are more extensive. Here is Shakespeare's original from Act IV Scene 1:

Friar: There is some strange misprision in the princes.

Benedick: Two of them have the very bent of honour. And if their wisdoms be misled in this, The practice of it lives in John the Bastard Whose spirits toil in frame of villainies.

Rewritten it comes:
Friar: Some strange misapprehension holds these princes.

Benedick: There's two of them are paragons of honor. And if their wisdom be misled in this, The fault lies at the door of John the Bastard Whose soul delights in framing villainies.

A spokesman said that by clarifying the texts, the National Theatre hopes audiences will find the comedies comic without the rustic hamming with which Shakespearean comedians usually signal the jokes.

he said, "you can't laugh."

World Appeal For Evidence Of Nazi Crimes

BONN (Reuters)—West Germany today launched a worldwide appeal for evidence of Nazi crimes in an effort to bring to justice criminals who might otherwise escape because of the expiration of the statute of limitations next spring.

The appeal, which followed a cabinet decision not to extend the statute of limitations, said the overwhelming majority of Nazi crimes had been dealt with by Allied and German courts, in other cases prosecutions had already been started.

Announcing that the appeal would be communicated to all governments concerned, the West German government said it was determined to atone for Nazi crimes and to restore legality which had been infringed.

SOLUTION MONDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

WASHINGTON — There are many nice people in our evil world.

I went out to Howard University to see Janice Williams, a Negro girl with a passion to be a social worker . . . whom some of our readers helped through college.

Janice, one of seven children, of parents now divorced, wrote me a touching letter from Indianapolis when she was 19. She pleaded for a college loan.

"I'd pay it back—honest I would," were her moving words. Many readers . . . mailed money . . . but a well-to-do Pennsylvania woman guaranteed the entire college expenses . . . providing her name be kept secret, even from Janice . . . and that Janice help others through college.

"I don't care to be paid back," the anonymous benefactress said.

After graduation from Howard, Janice worked two years with the New York City bureau of child welfare — helping unwed mothers round up "alleged fathers."

"I want to go back and get my master's degree," Janice told me last summer . . . "learn more techniques . . . be a better investigator."

She'd already paid back into the "Earl Wilson Scholarship Fund," as we called it . . . so now she's back at Howard at the graduate School of Social Work, learning the frequently bitter facts of life, and to help others cope with them.

Two days a week her "lab" is dealing with others' grief as student case worker at Travelers Aid in downtown Washington.

Life is raw there. Troubled people come all day long . . . the mentally disturbed, runaway wives, runaway husbands, sick children.

MIDNIGHT EARL IN N.Y. . . .

Never been so much phoning as now (even of pay phones) due to the meter scandal. . . . "Hottest ticket" now: Robert Goulet at the Plaza Persian Room. . . . Sammy Davis, who flew to Kansas City to be a Federal Grand Jury witness, then back to do Golden Boy, laughed when asked whether he was a defendant. "Happily, no!" he shouted. It involved a legit businessman he cannot mention. . . . El Morocco boss John Mills, besides saluting newlyweds Dolores Litman and Prince Mario Ruspoli, introduced his Polish-born chef, Stefan Czapski, who arrived from London to design a new "Les Ambassadeurs" menu.

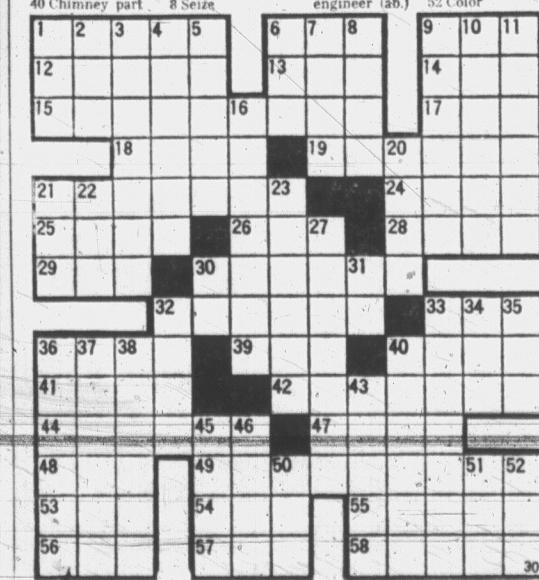

Eddie Fisher, singing at the LBJ ranch, muffed a note, and Milton Berle yelled, "Hey, Eddie, you weren't that nervous when you sang for Coolidge!"

Carlo Ponti surprised Sophia Loren, who was filming Operation Crossbow in London — he flew her servants and cooks in from Rome . . . MGM talked to Jack Jones (who'll open at the Persian Room Dec. 2) about a remake of the Judy Garland-Mickey Rooney movie, Girl Crazy.

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit life questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jan Awit, age 9, of Pt. Loma, Calif., for her question:

Why Are Apples Red?

Some apples taste sour and some taste very sweet. The sour ones make delicious pies. Some apples are soft to chew and some are crisp and crunchy. When you choose a sweet and crunchy apple to eat, chances are you pick the brightest red one. But some of the golden yellow ones or the rusty brown ones taste just as good as the rosiest red apples.

The bright red color tells us that the apple is ripe and all ready to be chewed down to the core. But the young growing apple was green, as green as grass, for many months before it became red and rosy ripe. Baby lemons and oranges also are green. Plums and peaches, bananas and blackberries are green while they are growing. They change to their gaudy colors when at last they become ripe.

The fruit and flowers and leaves of the world wear many beautiful colors. These colors are caused by chemicals inside the plants. Chemicals that add color to things are called pigments. The colors of paints and fabrics are caused by pigments. The flowery colors of a garden are caused by pigments. The rich colors in a ripe orchard are caused by pigments. Different colors are added by different pigments and scientists have names for these chemicals.

Pigment Adds Greenery

The favorite color of the plant world is green. The pigment that adds greenery to our beautiful world is called chlorophyll. It is chlorophyll that adds dark green to the Christmas tree and grey-green to the willow, grassy green to the lawns and bright green to the growing apples. There may be other pigments in the plants, pigments that could add other colors to the greenery. But most of the time the chlorophyll is so strong that it hides these other colors.

Chances are, you have heard the word chlorophyll and it does not seem strange to you. The other pigment chemicals of the plant world have fancy names that most of us have never heard. The chemicals that color the ripe apples red are called anthocyanins. All summer the green chlorophylls in the growing apples work hard to make plant food. But the anthocyanins are there, also, hidden by the busy greens. When the apples are ripe, the work of the chlorophylls is finished. They break up — and disappear — and the anthocyanins that were there all the time are left to add their rosy reds to the ripe apples.

Some apples turn golden yellow or rusty brown when they lose their green chlorophylls. These colors are added by pigments called carotenes that were there all the time, hidden by the green chlorophyll. Carotenes add the carrot color to carrots and the bright colors to zinnias and sunflowers. When the chlorophylls leave, the carotenes blend with the anthocyanins to add golds and rusty browns to certain apples.

NO ACTION AT 17 CENTS

Buy High, Sell Low Gov't Tunic Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF in recent weeks turned over 12,000 winter tunics to Crown Assets Disposal Corporation when it found it had ordered more than it needed. Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) said Thursday in the Commons defence committee. Mr. Winch, a member of the Commons public accounts sub-committee which has been investigating the corporation's operations at secret meetings, said the RCAF paid $6.50 to the T. Eaton Company for each tunic.

The highest bid received by Crown Assets for the tunics was 17 cents each, later withdrawn as too high. Mr. Winch said it has also been found that the army now has enough table linen for officers' messes to last it 25 years.

CROWN ASSETS

He also said Crown Assets received a bid of $75 for $900,000 worth of spare parts declared surplus when the two RCAF Comet jet transport planes were taken out of service last year.

The public accounts committee itself earlier heard evidence that $33,000,000 worth of surplus defence equipment had been sold for $786,000.

Mr. Winch asked whether the defence production department has any control over requisitions for equipment by the armed forces.

REQUISITIONS

Gordon Hunter, deputy minister of defence production, said his department can question but not challenge requisitions. However, there was "pretty good screening" of requisitions by the defence and defence production departments and by treasury board, a committee of the cabinet. Mr. Hunter conceded that over-requisitioning had been a "problem" in past years. He said he couldn't explain the extra 12,000 tunics.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Excessive Perspiration Means Checkup Needed

Q. I have a perspiration problem and have tried many deodorants. They had no effect on my perspiration. I have even tried an anti-perspirant. It has little effect. There must be something that will work! Not only is this embarrassing, but I am ruining my clothes. I would appreciate an answer as soon as possible. I hope you can help me. I have used dress shields. They help for a little while. I hope you can help me.

A. First, you should have always used an anti-perspirant rather than a deodorant. The latter simply does away with odor. However, today many of the products on the market do both—banish odor and slow perspiration.

Evidently, your problem is extreme. A physical checkup is in order. However, abnormal perspiration is most often due to nervousness. If you are tense and self-conscious or very shy, this may be the result. In this case try to change your viewpoint. Turn your thoughts out rather than in. A tranquilizer might be of help. Consult your doctor about your problem, he may be able to help you.

Q. I would like to see an article in your column about how to wash one's face. Just what is the perfect way to do it?

A. Fill the bowl with warm water. Work up a good suds on a clean washcloth. Massage the suds into the neck and face, with a rotary motion, working upwards. Replenish the suds frequently. Do this slowly. Take plenty of time. Be sure to rinse thoroughly. Be sure to remove all soap. Use warm water for the rinsing. Now splash cold water over your face or pat it with an ice cube wrapped in a soft cloth. This closes the pores.

Some women prefer a complexion brush rather than a washcloth. This stirs up circulation and is recommended for the woman or girl who has blackheads, whiteheads or enlarged pores. If you have blackheads it will be helpful if you steam your face before washing it. Fill the bowl with very hot water. Put a towel over your head to keep the steam in and lower your head over the bowl.

Q. What causes ingrown toenails?

A. Often incorrectly fitted shoes causes these. Also the habit of cutting the toenails in an oval or too far down at the sides can be the reason. Cut the nails straight across the top.

Chase Away Chills With Good, Hot Soup

By Penny Saver

According to the "big toe" of one of my "weatherman" friends, it is supposed to show this year. Whether it snows or not winter cold is now upon us and it is time to pack in supplies to warm the stomachs of chilly little "snowmen" and to keep winter at bay.

A good way to keep the cold outside where it belongs is to serve steaming hot soup for a meal. Penny has discovered two brand new soups which will chase away chills.

Vegetable soup is just the thing to keep the cold away. This particular soup is made with an old-fashioned recipe and contains all the nourishment of vegetables and thick beef broth. It makes a good meal in itself and also complements turkey or beef dinners.

Delicious noodle soup with ground beef chunks is also a meal in a can. A good lunch is hot noodle soup with a toasted—or plain—roast beef sandwich.

Those who prefer a thick Scottish soup will enjoy really thick broth made in Scotland. One delicious flavor is made with a leek base and game pheasant broth. Another is fit for a royal feast, containing leeks, grouse and pheasant broth.

Vegetable soup sells at two cans for 33 cents, and the noodle soup is two cans for 29 cents. Scottish soups are priced at two cans for 75 cents.

To finish off a luncheon, why not try oatmeal cookies as a dessert treat? These are made from a new instant cookie mix and you just have to add water. Presto! A package makes 60 extra-large delicious cookies, perfect for a school lunch or after-school treat. A package is 69 cents.

Why not ward off winter cold the delicious way? Give Penny a call at 382-3131.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Courtice cut their wedding cake at the reception and champagne party that followed their recent wedding in Beirut, Lebanon. Says Mrs. Courtice, "This cake may look elaborate to you, but it's the quietest one we could find. In Lebanon, the Arabs are never happy unless they can smother their wedding cakes with cupids and other figures of every description."

This Ex-Bachelor Exchanged Frozen Foods for Arabic Diet

By PAT DUFUR

If you're a bachelor and keen to stay that way, take care not to get yourself featured on a Times' picture page!

This is the advice of Paul Courtice, Vancouver Island representative for the National Film Board.

It all began when Paul was pictured as one of Victoria's eligible bachelors on a page devoted to men and their cooking prowess. He was seen in his Regent Towers apartment, happily preparing himself a bachelor meal of frozen meat pie and cool beer.

That scene must have brought out the mothering instinct in Jil MacBride for when they met shortly afterwards in the rumpus room of the apartment house, they struck up a friendship.

NO STRUGGLE

And, although Paul gives "tongue in cheek" advice about bachelors publicizing their single state, he really didn't struggle too much to retain it. In fact, he had to follow Jil to Lebanon in order to enter the marital stakes!

Why Lebanon? Jil's parents make their home in the capital city of Beirut where Mr. MacBride is an engineer with a well-known oil company.

When she and her future husband met, Jil was in Victoria for a five-month stay. In fact, she's one Canadian who's spent more time elsewhere than in her own country. Except for 4½ years, Jil has made her home in such places as the Bahrain Islands in the Persian Gulf, India, East Africa and Kenya.

PROPOSED BY WIRE

Her courtship was in keeping with her cosmopolitan way of life. Paul "popped the question" in September by means of a telegram, which Jil received while in London, England.

Last month, they were wed in All Saints' Anglican Church which has its terraces facing the Mediterranean waters of St. George's Bay. Their wedding reception was held in the MacBride apartment that offers a bird's eye view of the Lebanese city.

Now, they're back in Victoria and Jil is settling into the routine of a normal Canadian housewife... with a few variations.

Their menus are generously laced with an Arabic flavor. Both Paul and Jil are fond of taboule, a green salad that features mint, thyme and cracked wheat.

LOVE SCHISH-KEBABS

Naturally, they often dine on schish-kebabs although both miss the flat unleavened Arabic bread that coats such delicacies in Lebanon.

When Paul is not looking after the affairs of the National Film Board on Vancouver Island, he and his wife are happily putting together a film of their own. It was taken on their honeymoon trip which saw them motoring through Lebanon, Syria and Jordan up to Jerusalem.

During this trip the couple discovered latent talents, Paul as a director and Jil, an actress.

In their films, they've used as backdrop, the magnificent Roman ruins which they saw on the trip. These include the three huge temples to Jupiter, Venus and Bacchus at Baalbek and the ruins of Jerash.

AMATEUR ACTRESS

With eloquent gestures, Jil is seen captivating a ghostly audience in a huge Roman theatre. More down to earth, is another scene in which she uses a reed as a back scrubber for her ablutions in a Roman bath. For censoring purposes, this scene is acted out in conventional dress!

Paul is happy to relinquish most of his cooking chores, although he still insists on taking his turn when steaks are on the menu.

With witty pride, his au-brun-haired bride confesses, "He's really much better at cooking steaks than I am." But, Paul often sneaks a look at the Arabic cook book which they received as a wedding present.

He admits, "I might try my hand at a few of the dishes now that I've graduated from meat pies."

Ruby and Diamond Brooch Worn By Yolande Leemann

An heirloom ruby and diamond brooch fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Yolande Betty Leemann when she became the bride of Dr. H. Raymond McLaughlin in Oak Bay United Church.

She wore a floor-length gown of pure silk-Swiss imported brocade that was designed by her mother and made by Ursula Redwood. Highlighted with an embroidered Paisley design, the fitted bodice featured long slim sleeves and a rolled collar. The full bouffant skirt was fashioned with large pleats and a slight train.

A full-length veil misted from a pearl tiara and jewelry included a culture pearl necklace, gift of the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of stephanotis and ivy. She was given in marriage by her father.

Rev. A. Calder officiated at the ceremony that united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Boyd, 1296 Beach Drive, Victoria, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. McLaughlin of Belfast, Ireland.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

White baskets of chrysanthemums were at the altar and decorated the remainder of the church. Robert Kroeger was organist and soloist, Alan Husband, sang the "Lord's Prayer."

A floor-length gown of green velvet, styled en train, was worn by maid of honor, Miss Elisabeth Haller. She carried a bouquet of deep yellow chrysanthemums. Only jewelry was a culture pearl ring and pendant, gift of the bride.

Similar gowns in gold velvet, highlighted with matching peau de soie cummerbunds, were choice of bridesmaids, the Misses Sharon Knowles and Marnie Duff. They wore bands of small rust chrysanthemums in their hair and carried bouquets of matching flowers. Their only jewelry was culture pearl pendants, gifts of the bride.

TINY FLOWER GIRL

Three-year-old Karen Veerkamp was flower girl in a short white frock with a band of white stephanotis and ivy in her hair. She wore a pearl pendant, gift of the bride, and carried a small basket of stephanotis and ivy.

Dr. John Wong was best man and guests were ushered to pews marked with white ribbons by Dr. H. Redford and Aime Hegar.

Herbert White proposed the toast to the bride at a reception that followed in the home of her parents. The head table was covered with a hand-embroidered linen-cloth, accented with hand-crocheted lace and centred with a three-tier wedding cake decorated with four-leaf clover and topped with a silver-plated horseshoe. Completing the decorations were 100-year-old candelabra and silver vases of stephanotis and ivy. The bride's going-away outfit was a white Irish wool suit with red and black accessories, red coat and hat and corsage of red carnations.

Coultis, and his grandmothers, Mrs. M. Raw-

DOES JOB HERSELF

The Cook at 10 Downing Street Fired by Prime Minister's Wife

LONDON (Reuters)—For the first time in decades there is a right line. She clings to her friends from Mary Wilson, wife of Prime Minister Harold Wilson, proved it when she took over less than a week ago. She fired the cook. "We don't like having staff around us in our home," she told 30 British women reporters this week.

The Wilsons have a six-room apartment at the top of No. 10, which Mrs. Wilson manages with no help except a part-time cleaner. She buys her groceries at the dividend-paying "co-op" which is favored by working-class shoppers.

She also does the family washing in her own automatic, but draws the line at drying it. "I can't see hanging out the washing at No. 10," she said.

Mrs. Wilson talks politics with her husband while he's having breakfast, and "if there is something I feel very strongly Hampstead, the residential London suburb where the Wilsons lived for 16 years before Wilson became prime minister in the Oct. 15 election.

She is determined to keep on writing poetry, singing in a choir and buying her dresses from her favorite shop.

Her one dream of extravagance is to wear a tiara—borrowed, not bought. She said, "I don't have any jewelry."

Before she was married, Mary Wilson was a secretary.

She still harbors dreams of being a writer. She's keeping a "very frank" diary of life at No. 10—"for publication in about 100 years."

She doesn't think her sons, Robin, 20, now at Oxford, and Giles, 18, will go into politics, and doesn't mind.

Lacking personal political ambition, she is nevertheless delighted at the increasing number of women members of Parliament—28, compared with 25 after the 1959 election. —f

Mrs. Harold Wilson gives her husband a warm kiss as he relaxes after a busy day in the British House of Commons. Her day is filled with activities aimed at making 10 Downing Street the sort of home she's set her heart on.

Royal Wedding Anniversary

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip celebrated today their 17th wedding anniversary.

They spent the morning at Buckingham Palace and were leaving later in the day to spend the weekend privately in the country.

Prince Philip returned only yesterday from a tour of central and south American countries. The royal couple had been apart since early October, when they visited Canada together.

Canadian Styles to Have Premiere In The Bahamas

CALGARY (CP)—Canadian fashion styles may be conservative to some extent but they are never dull and have a definite Canadian identity, say two Vancouver fashion experts. Mrs. Blanche Macdonald, president of the Blanche Macdonald Limited Modelling School, and Mrs. Mel Batut, a director of the school, made the comments in an interview in Calgary Tuesday.

The two are touring the country to collect fashions representative of each area to present in an all-Canadian fashion show that will be seen in Canada, New York and Nassau, the Bahamas, early in the new year.

"The premiere is being held in the Bahamas because we were invited by the ministry of tourism and we wanted it in a Commonwealth country," Mrs. Macdonald said.

The show will be seen in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver but dates have not as yet been set. However, the Calgary show will be Feb. 1.

"We have distinctive fashions here—they only need to be given a chance," Mrs. Batut said.

TODAY'S RECIPE

OVEN-BARBECUED RIBS

Two to 3 lbs. spare ribs, salt, 1 cup diced onion, 1/2 cup catsup, 1/2 cup water, 2 tablespoons wine vinegar, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire, few drops tabasco, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup ripe olives.

Cut spareribs into serving-size pieces; place in large oven-proof casserole. Sprinkle with salt; brown in 350-degree moderate oven 30 minutes, turning once. Drain off fat.

Mix onion with all remaining ingredients except olives; pour over meat.

Cover and bake in 350-degree (moderate) oven 1 hour, basting occasionally with sauce.

Meanwhile, cut olives into large pieces; stir into casserole and bake 15 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings.

DEAR ABBY...

She's Sick!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you sent your grandson a $25 cheque for his 14th birthday, and his mother returned it with the following note:

"Dear Mother, Haven't you heard of inflation? What will $25 buy a 14-year-old boy today? Apparently, you need this worse than John does."

Love, Shirley.

Abby, this girl went to finishing school and is a college graduate. She and my son are considered socialites. They have a town house, a country home, a boat at Newport and go to Switzerland to ski! How would you handle this?

AMAZED.

DEAR AMAZED: Even educated "socialites" fall victims to mental illness. No woman in her right mind could have written such a contemptible letter. I'd ask my son to watch her for other signs of emotional disturbance.

DEAR ABBY: My husband works in a large office. One of his co-workers (a married woman) picked him up one evening last week and they went to a "planning meeting" as he is on the committee for the annual office party. Yesterday a neighbor told me that she saw my husband sitting in a parked car two blocks from home, talking to a strange woman. She said the car lights were turned off, but she recognized my husband.

When I asked my husband about this, he said it was true, but that he and this woman were just talking. I asked why they turned off the lights and he said they thought it might "look bad." Do you think my husband is guilty of anything?

WORRIED WIFE.

DEAR WORRIED: Yes, he's guilty of using poor judgment. But you have little to worry about. If he had been guilty of anything more serious, he wouldn't have been two blocks from home in a parked car.

DEAR ABBY: On my 18th birthday (last May) I accepted a diamond engagement ring from a boy I had been going with about three months. He is 23. We didn't set a date. Now I feel that I am not ready for marriage. I want to return the ring and date other boys and him, too, but he says if I return the ring he will go back to Texas where he came from. I still hold a deep feeling for him and don't want him to leave. He says either I have to be engaged to him or we break off completely, as he will not date me while I am dating others. I am so mixed up I don't know what to do. He keeps telling me he "loves" me and he knows I "love" him. I'm not sure I even know what "love" is. Rush your answer to me, Abby, as I told him I would give him my decision on Friday.

MIXED UP.

DEAR MIXED UP: Return the ring and tell the young man that it's not fair to him to wear his ring while you still want to date others. And in the future, do not accept a ring unless you intend it to stop your circulation.

DEAR ABBY: I am asking my landlady to write this for me because I am 89 years old and my hands shake. Please, Abby, put something in your column about the heartlessness of sending Great Grandma (at her own expense) to a warmer place, under the guise that it is "better" for her. Better to be deprived of all the familiar faces

TRIBAL WOMEN TAKE TO CLUBS

PORT MORESBY (Reuters)—Tribal women in Australian-administered Papua, New Guinea, are forming clubs as a means of raising their social status.

Observers here say the women's clubs may eventually develop into political action groups.

But their original aim was to raise women of a primitive society above the level of "hewers of wood and drawers of water." Since ancient times, tribal women have traditionally taken second place to their men.

There now are 530 women's clubs in the territory with more than 20,000 members.

HAIR-SPLITTERS PAY UP

CROFTON — The price of thin (h)air is at a premium here. To date it has netted $500. The money is being raised by Crofton Bearded Men's Club to provide Christmas gifts for crippled children on Vancouver Island. The club, set up several months ago, charges its members $10-a-time for thinning out their beards.

Since its formation, membership has been on the up and up. And so have funds. The money is stuck to a mirror in the Crofton Hotel where club meetings are held. Officials will hand over the cash to the crippled children's society shortly before Christmas. They hope by that time to have raised over $1,000.

ISLAND DIGEST

Ten local unions representing about 5,000 workers are in the council.

ALBERNI — First Alberni students to win the lieutenant governor's silver medal for leading B.C. high school graduates in government exams is Edna Shepherd.

She will receive the medal from Education Minister Peterson in a ceremony at Alberni District Senior Secondary School at 1:15 p.m. December 1.

Miss Shepherd, 18, now studying at the University of Victoria, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Shepherd of 208 Eighth Avenue, Port Alberni.

Postmaster's Loss TB Society's Gain Year In, Year Out

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — A lost nine months in the life of Bob Corney has earned B.C. Tuberculosis Society a lifetime worker.

Bob's lost months were spent in a tuberculosis hospital. That was nine years ago. Today, he is still campaigning to raise funds for other sufferers.

And this week he got down to the annual Christmas drive.

3,600 LICKS — At his Trunk Road home in Duncan, he and his wife settled into the tongue-tiring routine of sticking labels on 3,600 envelopes.

The envelopes contain Christmas seals which are sent out to people in the area. Sponsoring the campaign is the local Kiwanis Club, of which Bob is a member.

He has headed the drive since the year he first left hospital. In the same year he raised the district contribution from $2,000 to $5,000.

OVER $1,900 — Although Lake Cowichan set up its own campaign in 1959, the Corneys have topped the $4,000 mark for each of the past three years.

In addition to boosting the total, the couple boasted the lowest administrative costs in B.C. in 1963.

When it comes to keeping a list of annual subscribers, Bob has no problems — he is Duncan's postmaster.

Speaking of the TB society's operations, he said: "Operation floorstep is a major activity."

TOUR PROVINCE — Mobile units tour the province taking skin tests which can show up heart conditions, lung cancer and chest diseases as well as TB.

One such unit will be in the Cowichan area next April. The society also makes substantial grants to medical research.

A modern, new health unit in Duncan was partially paid for by society funds.

Three emotionally disturbed boys from B.C. have recently been sent to Washington state for treatment because there are no facilities available here, according to Miss Mary Kug, superintendent of child welfare.

She said there is a need for a treatment centre to handle teenage boys, similar to the one at Sevenoaks which takes only disturbed children up to 10 years of age.

If some community group would sponsor such a centre, Miss Kug felt sure government money and other help would be provided.

What causes BACKACHE and how Dodd's Kidney Pills may help

One widespread recurring form of discomfort is what is commonly called backache. One frequent cause of backache can be traced to sluggish kidney action. This condition often may result in irritation of the urinary system, followed by backache and tired feeling.

Based on a formula introduced over 70 years ago, Dodd's Kidney Pills stimulate the kidneys to help overcome the irritated condition, and so bring relief from the backache and tired feeling. Dodd's Kidney Pills are available at any drug counter in the blue box with the red band. The important thing to look for is the name. You can depend on Dodd's.

FRED MOUNTAIN . . . "we'd do it again."

DON'T PITY LIGHTHOUSE KEEPERS . . . THEY LIKE THE LIFE

25 Years on Job So That Others May See the Light

By JACQUES ROUSSEAU

Loneliness. Round-the-clock duty. Correspondence courses. Grocery shopping six months in advance.

The life of lighthouse-keepers Fred and Nellie Mountain has been all of these things for 25 years.

And there was the day Nellie had to remove a two-inch sliver from her husband's eye with a pair of mechanic's pliers — hastily sterilized.

"But we'd do it all over again," said Fred, the keeper of the Sherringham Point light, 16 miles from Sooke, on Vancouver Island's rugged west coast.

Their son, Arthur, who was taught by his mother using correspondence courses until Grade X, also thrived on the life. He's now chief officer on the Canadian Coast Guard cutter "Ready," master's ticket and all.

Refuge for Deer — The only inhabitants of Sherringham are the Mountains and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Shaver, their assistants.

The only intruders: the tamest of deer which find refuge on the station's lush lawns.

Fred, at Sherringham five years, has served 25 years with the Department of Transport and he's quick to point out he's had a lot worse postings than his present one.

His career began during the Second World War at Carmanah Point lighthouse near Clouse farther up the coast.

He also manned the Skerret Point light at the entrance to Christie Passage in Queen Charlotte Strait for five years, and the entrance to Nanaimo harbor, for seven years.

"The loneliest place of all was Carmanah," recalls Fred.

He and his wife went a year without seeing an outsider.

"The war was on" then, and facilities were restricted," he said. "No road led to the post, and the supply ship was so busy it couldn't call regularly."

Entrance Island was his most forsaken station. It was just an offshore rock about 600 by 150 feet.

A lightkeeper is put to the test at such a station. "He must be part doctor, part seaman, part engineer."

Most of all he must be able to adapt to the solitude. The lightkeeper of course has more to do than sit and watch the light in the tower. Constant maintenance of the equipment and machinery takes a lot of time, and the rest is taken up actually operating the facilities.

The star of the show at Sherringham or any other light is the magnificent "lantern," as it is called, atop the 64-foot tower.

And climbing the iron ladder inside the tower is no assignment for the weak-hearted. It's straight up and no refreshment booths on the way.

Electric Power — Inside the lantern there's just room to stand. The area is crammed with gear. The light, says Fred with pride, has burned 52 years. And it looks capable of another 52 without doing a fadeout.

The timed swivelling gear in earlier days was activated by weights much like the old grandfather clock. The weights took three hours to drop to the bottom of the tower.

"It took 10 minutes to crank them back up into the lantern for another drop, and so on until daylight," explained the keeper.

Today the machinery is motivated by "shore power." The lamp makes a complete revolution every 15 seconds.

In case of power failure an emergency auxiliary engine takes over at the flick of a switch. The magnifying lens cost $750,000 in 1912. Impossible, you say? They cost as high as $4 million today.

The prisms, 100 or more, are cut by hand from special glass. The Sherringham light has been damage-free throughout its lifetime.

For protection the main gear floats in a bath of mercury. And in case of earthquake (these boys think of everything), the gear is fitted with a cushion of ball-bearings which acts as a shock-absorber.

Inside the lens assembly are four bulbs of 1,000 watts each. Only one bulb burns at a time, the other switching on instantly and automatically in case of a burn-out.

On a clear night the beacon can be seen 19 miles at sea and it's mate, the foghorn, can be heard for 25 miles.

This complex life-saving apparatus could go up in flames, in two minutes flat, if Fred Mountain forgot one household chore . . . to CLOSE THE CURTAINS.

Mr. Wallace said 235 community committees have already been formed across the province.

He urged them to start work on their centennial plans now.

Mr. Wallace said the federal and provincial governments will also pay $1 per capita grants for specific projects, but none of this money will be handed out for a while.

Mr. Wallace said he does not know the exact amount Alberni and the other five areas will get this year.

The figure will be worked out using the most recent population estimates, he said.

There is a great deal of latitude for projects though there are some limitations," he said.

"Additions to existing structures may be accepted but it is not likely that improvements will be approved."

B.C. will pay a total of 40 cents per capita, spread over three years, for administration and planning.

The first applications for this grant have come from Nelson, Malaspina (near Powell River), Oyama, McConnell Creek, Rossland and Alberni.

LET'S TALK ABOUT $500 WHAT WILL IT BUY?
It seems when one talks about $500 down payment, the buying public immediately thinks of all the great things that can be bought with that money. Let me tell you what it really will buy.

Just 15 years old, this white stone 4 room house is located in one of the best areas of Esquimalt. Full basement, wired for electric range, a large kitchen, a large living room, a large bedroom, a large bathroom, a large terrace, a large driveway, a large garage, a large lot, a large view, a large price.

Let's not talk about it, let's look at it and you will then believe that $500 down payment DOES buy a house much cheaper than most that require a two bedroom apartment. Call MRS. V. ROBERTS for details. EV 5754 anytime. Newstead Realty Ltd.

OPEN BY APPOINTMENT IN UPPER OAK BAY

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The Negro race has scored a major breakthrough in television.

One of the brightest of the new comedians, Bill Cosby, has been signed to co-star in an action-and-adventure series called "I Spy," aimed at NBC-TV's schedule next fall.

It may not be as dramatic as Jackie Robinson breaking the color bar in major league baseball but it is significant.

A major campaign was launched by Negro leaders before and during the last television season and a combined with the all-out desegregation drive at the time and the stories of a number of TV drama series in that season, it made some large inroads as compared with the past.

This season, the networks have de-emphasized drama and stepped up situation comedy, and numerous audio and network officials confess privately they disagree with the contention of desegregation leaders that Negroes fit just as well into such shows in the mass public minds.

There are exceptions. ABC-TV's Valentine's Day has a Negro girl as a relative regular.

Now Negro leaders are beginning to see some daylight in their struggle.

Only last Monday, Danger Man (Channels 2 and 6) featured Negro actors in major roles. In fact, they outnumbered their white counterparts. Mind you the program dealt with a situation in one of the emerging nations of Africa, but giving such major roles to Negroes would have been unthinkable several seasons ago.

The "I Spy" show this will mark the first time a Negro has had a lead role in a TV dramatic series.

Cosby says he feels the assignment is important not as a racial issue, but a personal quest. "Can I do the job?" he asked. "Can this comedian turn into an actor?"

Robert Culp will share the lead.

Cosby thinks the casting of a Negro in an important role is simply evolution.

It had to come, he said, "a time when the fact that the character was dark-skinned had no importance to the story line."

TID BITS: NBC-TV's Danny Thomas special topped CBS-TV's Beatles' documentary in spot ratings last Friday. Ron Cochran bows out as anchorman of ABC-TV's evening news report Feb. 1. Victor Borge is set for a test film for a possible series based on Clifton Webb's old and successful movie character, Mr. Belvedere.

NBC-TV's Hall of Fame is reported thinking of a play about Napoleon in exile.

This has to be the living end! There is thought being given to a possible comedy series in which a young man's mother would be reincarnated as an automobile.

The title would be "My Mother, The Car" and Ann Sothern will be the vehicle's voice in the test film.

STABLES—FIXED MOBILES — demonstrating talent at creating a balanced composition were submitted by these two happy girls in the handicrafts display at the Prospect Lake and District Community Association's new hall. Both Grade Six students at Durrance Road School are, left, Lorna McHattie, 1618 Keating Cross Road, and Marilyn Henty, 5904 West Saanich. Hall will be opened Saturday night.

PATIENTS ASK THANT'S HELP

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A group claiming to represent cancer patients treated with the preparation krebiozen, outlawed in the U.S., appealed to Secretary-General U Thant Wednesday to help them in their fight to restore it as permitted medication.

The group was headed by Mrs. Laine Friedman of New York and included several describing themselves as cancer patients kept alive by krebiozen.

Former District Student Named Wing Commander

Percy Greenway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greenway, 963 Wilmer, has been appointed to the rank of wing commander in the RCAF.

A former student of Willows and Oak Bay High School, he joined the RCAF in 1941 and served two tours of bomber duty over North Africa.

From 1945 to 1960 he flew transport and all-weather fighter operations in Canada before being transferred to the 30th NORAD-Region, Madison, Wis.

He has been commanding officer of RCAF Station, Dana, Sask., since August.

News Strike Ends

DETROIT (AP)—Union and management in Detroit's 129-day newspaper strike agreed on settlement terms today.

'Prison Mutilates Young Offenders'

By VIJAR MEERE
United Press International

MONTREAL (UPI)—A psychiatric study of 50 young criminal offenders from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, average age 19, shows early exposure to prisons "is a mutilating experience."

"They suffer an irreplaceable loss of normal adolescence," a McGill research group told the fourth research council on delinquency and criminology.

"Regardless of how seriously anti-social young delinquents may be, to confine them in an adult penitentiary setting is a mutilating experience."

The study states "children as young as 13 to 18 are given penitentiary sentences."

Since adolescence is a time of momentous physiological and psychological change and growth, the study says, "spending most of these formative years in a penitentiary is hardly conducive to... becoming well equipped with a sound value system."

Boys ranging in age from 15 to 25 were used for the study by the McGill University of Psychiatry forensic research group.

Group director, Dr. Bruno Cormier, said the subjects all represented "the severest type of juvenile delinquency and were chosen precisely for this reason."

The purpose of the study was to look into the whole criminal process—how a delinquent child passes into adult crime.

Of the 50, 22 were primary delinquents who started to show delinquent patterns as early as age eight or nine. The other 28 were relatively free from delinquency until adolescence and are termed secondary delinquents.

Driver Blames Gas Pedal For Accident

A driver who panicked following an accident Oct. 28, then phoned police after leaving the scene, pleaded guilty in police court Thursday to leaving the scene of an accident.

Monte Tucker, 1711 Haultain, later told police his gas pedal fell off and he collided with a parked car when he bent to retrieve it.

About $400 damage was done to his car, and about $200 damage to the car he hit.

Tucker left, then phoned police about an hour later and admitted he'd been involved in the accident.

Magistrate J. A. Byers fined him $100, and ordered him to drive for business only for three months.

SOCIAL EBB ALLOWS WORK TO RESUME

Activity in the civic precinct—slowed by the recent City Hall opening and series of receptions—swung back into high gear Thursday.

While landscaping crews continued work, electricians began wiring up five cluster light standards installed Wednesday in the square.

Bulldozers and workmen also began shaping the step-down "knot garden"—a formal area of flowers—between the fountain and McPherson Playhouse.

Along the north side of the square, excavation equipment was in action beginning site preparation for the senior citizens' activity centre and the parking garage.

Workmen also began dismantling the roof of the police station annex which will be integrated with the new Magistrate's Courthouse.

Yule Prelude Theme for School Concert

A concert entitled Holiday Prelude will be presented by more than 200 young musicians in Central Junior Secondary School auditorium next Friday at 8:15 p.m.

There will be special Christmas music, including Carol of the Bells, excerpts from West Side Story and several original band numbers.

The concert will be presented by Central Junior Secondary school orchestra and the school band; Victoria Senior Secondary School orchestra and band; and Greater Victoria Schools orchestra.

Proceeds will go to the purchase of new uniforms.

Alberta Will Study Gasoline Retailing

EDMONTON (CP)—Premier Manning said Thursday the government plans to set up a committee to study gasoline retailing in the province.

The decision was made by the cabinet Wednesday, he said. Its members and its terms of reference would be worked out by A. R. Patrick, minister of industry and development.

Lights Ban Urged

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Safety Council will ask Attorney-General Bonner for a ban on revolving amber lights used by some businessmen to attract customers.

Prospect's the Place Saturday

A wing-ding country carnival—including cake walk, games of chance, white elephant auction, home cooking sale and entertainment—will be held Saturday at 7 p.m. in the Prospect Lake District.

Time out from the festivities will be taken at 8 p.m. so that Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes can open officially the new community hall built by some 80 volunteers.

Admission to the celebration is free and open to all. The hall is on Sparton Road, a few yards east of the intersection with West Saanich Road where the Oldfield Service Garage and West Saanich general store are located.

33 MONTHS' WORK

The rural "blowout" culminates 33 months of effort by the Prospect Lake and District Community Association to build the large post-and-beam hall, complete with stage, kitchen, washrooms and meeting room.

Early subscription drives brought in about $4,600, including a $1,000 donation from Mrs. W. C. Woodward of Woodwyn Farm. All told, there were 110 local donors.

Bazaars and other activities brought in another $3,800.

Work began on the modern hall, located on a one-acre site, in the spring of 1963 and about $10,000 worth of donated labor and supplies went into its construction.

WORTH $20,000

The hall is valued at about $20,000, and only about $6,000 of debt remains to be cleared.

Used for Scout and Guide meetings, and numerous other community activities, the hall already has become a busy centre for the entire district between Prospect and Elk Lakes.

Plans are being laid for enlarging the present 50-car parking area to 75 spaces, establishing a grassed playing field and adding tennis courts.

Dockers in Nfld. Boycott Association

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The St. John's longshoremen's strike which began four weeks ago as a complete stoppage of port facilities has become a boycott of members of the St. John's Employers' Association.

The 500-man Longshoremen's Protective Union (Ind.) struck Oct. 26 to protest the employers' association's plan to introduce automation to the port's operations.

Early last week, the longshoremen went back to work but only on ships operated by companies which are not members of the association. So far the only new company to offer a shipping service between Montreal and St. John's is the newly-formed R. and R. Shipping Company, operated in co-operation with the provincial government.

Union president Norman Donovan said his men would work any ship which did not belong to the employers' association.

However, before the government could initiate the service, a locally-owned company was formed and offered to charter the ships for the purpose. The government agreed to co-operate and is reported to have assisted the new venture financially.

Clarke - Canada Steamships, the largest firm on the St. John's-Montreal run, attempted to handle its own ships using non-union stevedores. But after three ships were unloaded, the sheds became filled and the plan was dropped.

ST. JOHN'S SYMPATHIZE

St. John's truckers, members of the St. John's Truckers Association, have refused to cross LSPU picket lines.

When the strike began, the CNR switched its centre of operations from St. John's to Lewisport so that the service of the communities along the coast of Labrador and northern Newfoundland would not be hampered.

Meanwhile, the longshoremen are working at almost the same rate they would if there were no strike. The men work on a rotation schedule and Mr. Donovan said this week about 120 men are employed.

Both the union and the association have met with Premier Smallwood but no statements on the meetings have been issued.

Only one incident has developed from the strike. Early last week, six rifle bullets were fired through the windows of the Clarke-Canada offices narrowly missing a night watchman.

The union has about 50 men on picket lines along the waterfront and thousands of tons of freight, much of it perishable, has been sitting in sheds for nearly a month.

Windows Broken After Arrest

A housewife, who smashed two police station windows after being arrested, pleaded guilty Thursday to impaired driving and wilful damage.

Mrs. Irene Mary Milne, 1269 Tattersall Drive, was charged in city police court with the offences.

The court was told she was arrested early this morning after a constable noticed her driving erratically on Bay near Cook.

When she stopped her, she was abusive and used deplorable language, said prosecutor Peter Birkett.

The constable and an examining doctor were of the opinion she was impaired. She admitted having drunk six beers.

While she was being held in the city police station, she broke two windows, said the prosecutor.

Magistrate J. A. Byers fined her $250 for impaired driving, and $25 for causing wilful damage.

He also prohibited her from driving for six months and ordered her to pay $12.50 restitution for the windows.

SUCCESS SEEN FOR MEDICARE

EDMONTON (CP)—Premier Manning said Thursday a review of the first year's operation of the Alberta medical care plan indicated that it has been a major success.

He made the comment after the Provincial Cabinet, representatives of the medical profession and medical insurance companies had reviewed the plan which allows persons with low income to receive government aid on the cost of premiums.

REBEL ARMY LEADER, in white shirt, struggles for his life as he is taken away by government soldiers during recent roundup in Kindu, The Congo. He and other prisoners were taken to Leopoldville for imprisonment. Government troops left Kindu Thursday in advance on rebel stronghold of Stanleyville where Canadians are held as hostages.

Paratroopers Ready To Rescue Hostages

Belgian Force Set for Action

BRUSSELS (AP)—Belgian paratroopers are ready to intervene if needed to save the lives of whites held as hostages in The Congo's rebel-held Stanleyville, the government announced tonight.

A foreign affairs ministry statement said a battalion of Belgian paratroopers was awaiting further orders on the island of Ascension, off the west coast of Africa.

The announcement said that "with the assistance of the U.S. Air Force, the 1st Battalion of Belgian Paratroopers has been transported to the island of Ascension, where they are staying with the authorization of the British government."

The statement described the move as "preparatory measures so as to undertake, if needed, a rescue operation for purely humanitarian reasons."

Congolese Warn U.S., Belgium

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—A Congolese government spokesman today warned Belgium that any unilateral decision to send troops into The Congo would be "aggression"—but if a proposal were first made to the Congo government, "the latter would study it with favor."

The spokesman was Emmanuel Sinda, who also warned the United States against negotiating with the Stanleyville government agreement, and went on: "Belgium's unilateral decision to send elite troops (paratroopers) to The Congo to protect her citizens would be... aggression."

Happy Ending for Abandoned Baby

By MARGE GILROY

The story of baby "Lotta", a baby who had been abandoned in Korea, was a disheartening tale last year.

This year the story is progressing to a happy ending as the baby has been adopted by a Korean family and is growing up to be a healthy wee girl.

The story was told last year by Dr. Lotta Hitchensmanova, director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, when she made her annual visit to Victoria. The baby had been abandoned on the steps of the U.S.C. headquarters in Korea. Social workers took the child in and named her Lotta. This spring Dr. Hitchensmanova saw her namesake happily placed in an adoption home.

It is rewards such as these which keep Dr. Hitchensmanova campaigning for funds to feed new babies, still being abandoned at an increasing rate.

STUDENT SHARES

It is also teenagers like Frances Gregory who make the campaign a success.

Frances is a student at Claremont Senior High School. She, along with other Canadian teen-agers enjoys a high standard of living, but she shares what she has with others, less fortunate.

She has an adopted sister in an orphanage in Severs, outside Paris, whom she supports, but she doesn't stop sharing there. This year she collected $21.21 in a USC collection box. All year she saved a coin a day for a hungry child, and Wednesday night she donated it to the "Help The Hungry Child" fund.

Two more contributions today have sent the fund over the $1,000 mark, reaching a total of $1,010.38.

Donations are tax deductible and may be sent to the Times-sponsored "Help The Hungry Child" fund care of the Times. Official receipts will be sent out later from USC headquarters.

and donors will be acknowledged daily in the paper.

List of contributors follows:
Mrs. G. P. Gibson $10.00

No Special Blame on Jews For Crucifixion—Vatican

VATICAN CITY (CP)—The Vatican ecumenical council today approved a historic declaration on the Jews and other non-Christians after Pope Paul rejected a move led by Canadian and U.S. bishops for an immediate vote on the council's controversial religious liberty declaration.

The document on non-Christians, which says the Jews must never be considered cursed or specially blamed for the crucifixion of Christ, was approved by 1,657 prelates in favor, 242 in favor but reservations and 99 opposed.

The declaration also makes overtures to the Hindus, Buddhists and Moslems and restates the Roman Catholic Church's opposition to discrimination or harassment on account of race, color or creed.

The declaration, one of the most controversial before the council, is not expected to be promulgated as a decree until the next council session.

During the recess that begins after Saturday's closing, it will be revised to take into account some of the reservations expressed by prelates today.

But the favorable vote means no major changes of substance can be made and that it is only a question of time—barring unforeseen developments—before the declaration becomes a formal council decree.

U.K. Surcharges Off 'In Months'

GENEVA (CP)—Danish Foreign Minister Per Haekkerup said today the British government has agreed to start dismantling its 15 per cent import surcharge "within a matter of months."

Haekkerup gave no indication whether a definite timetable for the dismantling process has been set. He spoke briefly with reporters as the European Free Trade Association ministerial council met to ratify an agreement hammered out in an all-night session in a Geneva hotel room.

Informed sources said the agreement included a commitment by Britain to give her six EFTA partners a voice in gradually dismantling the surcharge they had bitterly denounced as a violation of the EFTA treaty.

The marathon session was attended by the foreign and trade ministers of the EFTA nations, including British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker and Douglas Jay, president of the British Board of Trade.

WATCHDOG GROUP

Bowing to EFTA pressure, they accepted the creation of a watchdog committee which will be authorized to keep a close eye on the British economy, in formed sources said. The committee will have a say in determining when the British economy is in a sufficiently healthy state for the surcharge to be reduced or eliminated.

Gordon Walker repeatedly telephoned to London during the night to consult with Prime Minister Harold Wilson as the intense negotiations progressed.

APPOINTED rapporteur to the military committee of the NATO parliamentarians conference in Paris today is Victoria Liberal M.P. David W. Grooms who will prepare report of sessions. He is first Canadian to hold post.

Arthur Mayse

Our tough old holly tree is speckled with red, one of our young is practicing carols, and no weekday but brings its quota of pre-season junk mail.

We don't object to the card on which is mounted a shiny new coin, since an extra nickel is always useful. Same for the catalogues. Once we even ordered a couple of wonder-gimmicks from a Toronto firm on the strength of the richly imaginative descriptions.

But the mailman's bag contains one item that never fails to raise our hackles. This is the unsolicited box, package or envelope of Christmas cards for which the senders impudently assume that payment will be dispatched.

Since I incline to be surly in November—plagued by the memory of sunshine days when I could have gone fishing but didn't, and oppressed by bills to come—my immediate inclination is to toss any such tokens into the trash burner.

Our burdened mailman insists, however, that this is not correct procedure.

All you need do, says he, is scribble "Refused" on the package, stroke a line through your address, and under the sender's, add, "Return."

No stamps are required. The hard-sell artists get stuck with return postage . . . and serve 'em right!

With that beef disposed of, let us visit certain lively-minded friends of this department who meet twice each week at 46 Sims.

They are members of Parkdale Senior Citizens Centre, a group which numbers about 30 when everyone's present, and last Thursday they invited me to 3 o'clock tea.

I arrived at the neat little house between West Burnside and the Island Highway a few minutes late, but the tea was still hot, and secretary Mrs. William Synhurst had saved a plate of sandwiches and two pieces of excellent date loaf.

Most of the members had finished their own tea and were playing bridge at card tables set up in living and dining-rooms of the private home which the group took over in the spring of 1960.

Some live in the downtown area, others come from as far distant as Oak Bay. Their Tuesday and Thursday afternoons in good company are the bright spots of their week.

I asked Mrs. Synhurst—in her seventies but spry as a cricket—about a between-rooms arch gay with pampas grass plumes and big red apples.

"Part of our Thanksgiving decorations," Mrs. Synhurst explained. "They looked so nice we decided to leave them up."

The old folks' club, organized by Mr. and Mrs. Synhurst five years after they left Ladysmith to retire in Victoria, met originally in a church basement, but found its occasional bingo session frowned upon. So the Synhursts invested $7,500 (most of their savings) in the snug little cottage with its rose bushes in the front yard and its pear trees out back.

There, for a membership fee of one dollar a year, the centre provides a haven where men and women no longer young can find good company, a warm welcome . . . and a superior cup of tea.

In recent weeks, we have been given several hints that British Columbia might do worse than establish her own provincial police force.

I hope this is no more than spite-talk resulting from Ottawa's suggestion that provinces which have contracted with the federal authority for law enforcement should be paying considerably more for this service.

In their heyday, the B.C. Provincial Police rated among the world's finest rural constabulary. They were, most of them, good men and true, and in settlements rather wilder than the surrounding wilderness, the big man in khaki whipcord was not merely the law's servant, but law personified.

Much as I admired and respected the 'Provincials,' however, I don't think we should reverse the decision that did away with the 92-year-old force in 1950.

The RCMP is policing our province very well indeed. It has its faults, as must any federal outfit, but subservience is not one of them.

So, say I, let them alone and let Ottawa's horsemen continue to write speeding tickets with calm impartiality for you, me, and Flying Phil.

INSIDE STORY of a garbage burner was learned the hard way today by Mandy, 3-year-old cocker spaniel owned by the A.C. Potters at 1046 Gosper Crescent. Something inside smelled good and the hole looked large enough, so Mandy poked her head in. Her ears kept her from bringing it out. Mrs. A. McLeary, 1024 Gosper, called the SPCA and Don McCormick was there with his tin snips in five minutes and Mandy was free. Moral—when you're in the dumps, don't lose your head, send for the SPCA. MRS. MIRIAM ELLIS, breeches at the fair

Top Woman Farm Writer Dies In East

Miriam Green Ellis, who found fame in the west in a lifetime of agricultural writing, died Thursday in a Winnipeg hospital.

Funeral service will be held at 1 p.m. Tuesday from Holy Trinity Anglican Church in Winnipeg.

For more than 30 years her name was a byword in recording farm activities.

She was a frequent visitor to Victoria.

She retired in 1953 as western editor of the Family Herald and Weekly Star, for which she worked for 25 years.

Mrs. Ellis was born in Richmond, N.Y., and later her family moved to Edmonton.

Reporting experience with the Prince Albert Herald, the Regina Post and Edmonton Bulletin led to her opening the Family Herald's Winnipeg office.

She and the late L. Cora Hind, colorful agricultural editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, once ruffled high society by wearing breeches to the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

WIDE OPEN SHOPPING DUE SOON

Wide-open store hours start in two weeks for the Christmas shopping rush.

Among the big stores, only Woolco won't be changing its hours. The store is open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily except Saturday when it opens an hour earlier.

Only change at the F. W. Woolworth Company division will be on Christmas Eve, when the store will close at 6 p.m., said general manager J. R. Stookes.

Eaton's starts its late hours Dec. 7 when it is planned to open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily, said assistant manager G. M. Horton.

On Christmas Eve the store will close at 5:30 p.m.

Hudson's Bay will open between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Dec. 14. And on Dec. 18, 19 and Dec. 21-23 hours will be 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., said manager J. H. McKay.

Christmas Eve will see the store open from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Mayors Wire Appreciation To City Hosts

Telegrams began arriving by the score today from the departed Quebec mayors' group thanking Victoria hosts for their reception last weekend.

Executive director Marcel Lambert—of the Quebec Union of Municipalities—wired messages to individual Victorians addressing them as "chers amis de Colombie Britannique" and tendering "our most sincere thanks for allowing us to taste the warm hospitality of your home."

Roof Collapse Buries Men Under Bricks

Two workmen were injured when an overhanging roof collapsed during demolition of part of the old city police station on Fisgard Street this morning.

The men were pinned beneath fallen masonry before their workmates released them.

They were rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital where they are reported to be in "not serious" condition.

The injured men are Bruce Ouellette, 1972 Davie, and J. D. Shaw, believed to be staying at the Salvation Army hostel.

Eye witnesses said the men were standing on a canopy that jutted out from the part of the building being demolished.

A support wall at the side of the building was pulled out and the canopy, which had been kept in place by the wall, toppled over.

The men fell about 10 feet to the ground and heavy concrete bricks fell on them. One appeared to have suffered leg injuries.

ST. PHILIP'S IN OAK BAY

Survey to Size Up New Church

Members of St. Philip's Anglican Church will canvass 1,500 homes in the University of Victoria area this weekend to determine how big its new church shall be.

The church will be built on two acres of land in the lower university area off Foul Bay Road.

Its design is known but not its size.

"We shall canvass 1,500 homes within walking distance of the new site to ascertain who are Anglicans and who will attend the new church," said Lt.-Col. Rev. R. O. Wilkes, rector of St. Philip's.

This is being done as a precaution against building a church which is either too large or too small.

At a minimum the new church will provide seating accommodation for 500. It will be larger depending on the findings of the canvassers.

The parish of St. Philip's was formed in August 1960 as an offshoot of St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, and has since held services, Sunday school functions and social gatherings in Carnarvon Church Hall at the corner of Neil and Eastdowne.

The congregation has now outgrown this accommodation with a total of some 250 families.

It has already raised more than $5,000 towards the cost of the new building and the University of Victoria has agreed to sell two acres of its land to St. Philip's.

$4.6 Million for B.C. From Oil, Gas Leases

$700 An Acre Tops At Public Auction

The B.C. government today made $4.6 million in a major sale of oil and gas rights.

Mines Minister Donald Brothers said 78 oil leases covering 42,570 acres in northern B.C. were sold to bidders at a public auction of crown rights.

Also sold were six exploration permits covering 513,955 acres and five drilling reservations over 99,732 acres.

The total paid in bonus bids by the oil companies was $4,610,869.

Biggest individual deal was a drilling reservation on 18,577 acres near Fort Nelson bought jointly by Union Oil Co. and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. for $325,000.

Top price per acre was $700.

Bailey Selburn Oil and Gas Co. of Calgary paid $121,811 for 174 acres to get an oil lease in the Milligan Creek oilfield.

Imperial Oil Enterprises Ltd. paid $160,529 for four exploration permits south of Dawson Creek.

'Army' Pair Transferred To Toronto

Major and Mrs. John R. Morrison, who have been in charge of Victoria Salvation Army Citadel, 757 Pandora Avenue, since January, 1963, are being moved to Toronto.

On Dec. 1 they will take over command of Toronto Temple Corps, which is headquarters corps for the Salvation Army in Canada.

"Although this is a promotion for us, we are deeply sorry to leave Victoria," Major Morrison said. "We have many fine friends here and the Victoria Citadel has a strong and devoted membership."

In Toronto Major Morrison will succeed Brigadier James Sloan who is being moved to Vancouver as chancellor for the British Columbia south division.

"These changes have been made at the top level," Major Morrison said. "We don't yet know who will succeed us in Victoria."

He and his wife were transferred here from Hamilton, Ont., in 1963.

Major Morrison was born in Montreal and raised in the Salvation Army there. His wife, Helen, comes from Sherbrooke, Que., and is the daughter of Rev. E. V. Cook of Millford United Church, Ont.

They have one son, Robert, aged eight.

Curran Seeking Another Term On School Board

School trustee George Curran today became the first to announce his candidacy for the Saanich school board seat to be decided in Dec. 12 elections.

Mr. Curran is seeking his third two-year term on the school board. He is currently chairman of buildings and grounds.

Five seats on the board will be contested next month, one in each of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt and two in Victoria.

TOPICS of the DAY

An 11-year-old cyclist who broke his leg Thursday is in good condition today at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Christopher Baal, 1041 Pemberton, received the injury when he jammed on the brakes of his bike as it speeded down a sloping driveway at 1744 Gonzales.

The bicycle skidded and he was thrown off.

Newly-elected president of the Victoria branch of the Institute of Power Engineers is A. J. Siebel. Other officers are vice-president, C. F. Rainsford; secretary, John Drew; treasurer, Albert Deakin and regional officers, W. D. Wintner, C. F. Rainsford and Gordon Creed.

Dick Batey will moderate the panel discussion, "Let's Look at Counseling," at a meeting of Royal Oak Junior secondary school PTA Monday at 8 p.m. in the school gym.

The B.C. Fish and Game Branch today announced extension of open seasons on deer, elk and bull moose in the East Kootenays.

The announcement said the extensions were decided upon because the game harvest in the area has been lower than is desirable "for good management" as a result of continuing mild weather and resultant light snowfalls.

In each case the season was extended to Dec. 6.

Mrs. A. Fryer will address the British-Israel World Federation Monday at 3 p.m. at Newstead Hall, 734 Fort St. The speaker's subject will be "The Writing on the Wall."

James Bay Golden Age Club will meet Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Niagara Street Hall.

A woman pedestrian who was in collision with a car at Douglas and Broughton Thursday night was discharged from the Douglas Building emergency hospital after a checkup.

Mrs. Helen Lark, 41, of 106 general of B.C. will speak on crossed Douglas. Police identified the driver of the car as Jumbia.

David Roberts, 3850 Symon

The younger section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey parking lot for a field trip to Bear Hill, Saanich.

The Nature House at Francis Park will soon be open on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Oak Bay Social Credit League will hear Dr. Ralph R. Loffmark next Wednesday at 7:30 at the Oak Bay Municipal Hall.

The minister of trade and commerce's subject will be "Your Place in Government."

Two Esquimalt-based destroyers will be engaged in gunnery practice Monday and Tuesday off Sherringham Pt.

HMC ships Fraser and Qu'Appelle will conduct surface firings from 10:30 a.m. of noon and 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. Monday and from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Two corporals in the Queen's Own Rifles appeared in court today charged with assault.

Rudolph Radostits and Ernest Grant, both of Work Point Barracks, were remanded to Nov. 27 for trial after they pleaded not guilty to the charge.

HAIR-SPLITTERS PAY UP

CROFTON — The price of thin (h)air is at a premium here. To date it has netted $300. The money is being raised by Crofton Bearded Men's Club to provide Christmas gifts for crippled children on Vancouver Island. The club, set up several months ago, charges its members $10-a-time for thinning out their beards.

Since its formation, membership has been on the up and up. And so have funds. The money is stuck to a mirror in the Crofton Hotel where club meetings are held. Officials will hand over the cash to the crippled children's society shortly before Christmas. They hope by that time to have raised over $1,000.

ISLAND DIGEST

Victoria Daily Times FRIDAY, NOV. 20, 1964 25

Meeting Monday On Bus Quarrel

PORT ALBERNI — A meeting has been set up Monday between outraged parents and school board officials.

The parents want a school bus for their children to save a long walk along a heavily wooded route.

School board officials say the 1½-mile distance does not merit a bus under departmental regulations.

KEPT HOME
Parents of the 29 secondary school students kept their home Thursday in a bid to win their claim. The suburban Arrow-smith Heights parents, said that they fear their children will be abducted while walking to school.

NANAIMO — Fifty-one Christmas trees have been given to the Light Up for Christmas Committee by Crown Zellerbach.

The trees, ranging from eight to 40 feet in height, will be dotted around the city. Several organizations have promised to help light them.

INQUEST DUE IN DEATH OF HUNTER

NANAIMO — An inquest will be held into the shooting death Wednesday of Nanaimo hunter Ivan Stolarchuk.

Date will be set later. The 29-year-old second engineer on the biological research ship A. P. Knight, was killed in a Cariboo hunting accident. He was hunting with three other Nanaimo men.

They were Jack Morgan, 309 Highway, John Tesini, 40 Hobbins, and Robert Mayes, 280 Juniper.

Stolarchuk lived at 535 Nova Street.

Farm Society To Elect Five Directors

Five directors will be elected for two-year terms at the annual general meeting of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society on Monday, Nov. 30.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the main hall at Saanichton fair grounds.

The five new directors will join four who still have a year to serve in their terms of office. The four are Mrs. W. C. Woodward, Jady Wright, Gordon Rendle and Bud Michell.

There will be an election for president and vice-president, now held by Albert Doney and Pat Hoole, respectively.

Annual reports will be given which will include details of the operation of the last Saanichton Fair.

Crop Board Quits

REGINA (CP) — All six members of the Saskatchewan crop insurance board have submitted their resignations to the provincial government. Agriculture Minister A. H. McDonald said Wednesday. Mr. McDonald said the six men stated in a joint letter of resignation to the minister that "since our last meeting there have been indications that you do not have complete confidence in the Saskatchewan Crop Insurance Board. We hereby resign."

VANCOUVER ISLAND ROUNDUP

Labor Council Organized

PORT ALBERNI — The Port Alberni and District Labor Council has been organized here and a pro-tem executive elected.

The group, formerly part of the Nanaimo group, has applied for a charter from the Canadian Labour Congress.

Confirmation of the charter should be received shortly and issued early next month.

President of the council is Dan Connell of the pulp-sulphite union. Secretary-treasurer is Maurice Corbell of the Woodworkers.

Top local unions representing about 5,000 workers are in the council.

ALBERNI — First Alberni students to win the lieutenant-governor's silver medal for leading B.C. high school graduates in government exams is Edna Shepherd.

She will receive the medal from Education Minister Peterson in a ceremony at Alberni District Senior Secondary School at 1:15 p.m., December 4.

Miss Shepherd, 18, now studying at the University of Victoria, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Shepherd of 208 Eighth Avenue, Port Alberni.

NORTH COWICHAN — A meeting between representatives of North Cowichan, Duncan and Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce has been postponed indefinitely. The meeting, originally set for Nov. 27, was to discuss the advisability of forming a joint water extension services board in this area.

Alberni Among First For Birthday Money

Alberni is Vancouver Island's first community to seek provincial funds for celebrating Canada's centenary in 1967.

Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace, head of B.C.'s centennial committee, said Wednesday six communities have applied for initial grants.

The government will pay 10 cents per capita this year, for administration and program planning, for the big party.

The first applications for this grant have come from Nelson, Malaspina (near Powell River), Oyaama, McConnell Creek, Rossland and Alberni.

The money may be used any way the communities wish, Mr. Wallace said.

B.C. will start centenary celebrations in 1966 to mark the union of the Crown colonies of Vancouver Island and B.C. in 1866.

Mr. Wallace said 235 community committees have already been formed across the province.

He urged them to start work on their centennial plans now.

Postmaster's Loss TB Society's Gain Year In, Year Out

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — A lost nine months in the life of Bob Corney has earned B.C. Tuberculosis Society a lifetime worker.

Bob's lost months were spent in a tuberculosis hospital.

That was nine years ago. Today, he is still campaigning to raise funds for other sufferers.

And this week he got down to the annual Christmas drive.

3,600 LICKS
At his Trunk Road home in Duncan, he and his wife settled into the tongue-tiring routine of sticking labels on 3,600 envelopes.

The envelopes contain Christmas seals which are sent out to people in the area.

Sponsoring the campaign is the local Kiwanis Club, of which Bob is a member.

He has headed the drive since the year he first left hospital.

In the same year he raised the district contribution from $3,000 to $5,000.

OVER $1,000

Although Lake Cowichan set up its own campaign in 1959, the Corneys have topped the $1,000 mark for each of the past three years.

In addition to boosting the total, the couple boasted the lowest administrative costs in B.C. in 1963.

When it comes to keeping a list of annual subscribers, Bob has no problems — he is Duncan's postmaster.

Speaking of the TB society's operations, he said: "Operation doorstep is a major activity."

TOUR PROVINCE

"Mobile units tour the province taking skin tests which can show up heart conditions, as well as TB."

One such unit will be in the Cowichan area next April.

The society also makes substantial grants to medical research.

A modern, new health unit in Duncan was partially paid for by society funds.

COURTESY RALLY on Nov. 29 is planned by New Democrats who will hear national leader T. C. Douglas, above, and provincial leader Robert Strachan. The rally will coincide with nomination of Tom Barnett for Comox-Alberni constituency which he now represents in Parliament.

John Squire and David Stupich, NDP members from Alberni and Nanaimo, are expected to attend.

Disturbed Boys Sent to U.S.

Three emotionally disturbed boys from B.C. have recently been sent to Washington state for treatment because there are no facilities available here, according to Miss Mary King, superintendent of child welfare.

She said there is a need for a treatment centre to handle teenage boys, similar to the one at Sevenoaks which takes only disturbed children up to 10 years of age.

If some community group would sponsor such a centre, Miss King felt sure government money and other help would be provided.

What causes BACKACHE and how Dodd's Kidney Pills may help

One widespread recurring form of discomfort is what is commonly called backache. One frequent cause of backache can be traced to sluggish kidney action. This condition often may result in irritation of the urinary system, followed by backache and tired feeling.

Based on a formula introduced over 70 years ago, Dodd's Kidney Pills stimulate the kidneys to help overcome the irritated condition, and so bring relief from the backache and tired feeling. Dodd's Kidney Pills are available at any drug counter in the blue box with the red band. The important thing to look for is the name. You can depend on Dodd's.

25 Years on Job So That Others May See the Light

By JACQUES ROUSSEAU

Loneliness. Round-the-clock duty. Correspondence courses. Grocery shopping six months in advance.

The life of lighthouse-keepers Fred and Nellie Mountain has been all of these things for 25 years.

And there was the day Nellie had to remove a two-inch sliver from her husband's eye with a pair of mechanic's pliers — hastily sterilized.

"But we'd do it all over again," said Fred, the keeper of the Sherringham Point light, 16 miles from Sooke, on Vancouver Island's rugged west coast.

Their son, Arthur, who was taught by his mother using correspondence courses until Grade X, also thrived on the life. He is now chief officer on the Canadian Coast Guard cutter "Ready," master's tucker and all.

Refuge for Deer
The only inhabitants of Sherringham are the Mountains and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Shaver, their assistants.

The only intruders: the tamest of deer which find refuge on the station's lush lawns.

Fred, at Sherringham five years, has served 25 years with the Department of Transport and he's quick to point out he's had a lot worse postings than his present one.

His career began during the Second World War at Carmanah Point lighthouse near Clouse farther up the coast.

He also manned the Scarlet Point light at the entrance to Christie Passage in Queen Charlotte Strait for five years, and Entrance Island light at the entrance to Nanaimo harbor, for seven years.

"The loneliest place of all was Carmanah," recalls Fred.

He and his wife went a year without seeing an outsider. The war was on then, and facilities were restricted, he said. "No road led to the post, and the supply ship was so busy it couldn't call regularly."

Entrance Island was his most isolated station.

It was just an offshore rock about 600 by 150 feet.

A lighthouse is put to the test at such a station.

"He must be part doctor, part seaman, part engineer."

Most of all he must be able to adapt to the solitude.

The lighthouse of course has more to do than sit and watch the light in the tower.

Constant maintenance of the equipment and machinery takes a lot of time, and the rest is taken up actually operating the facilities.

The star of the show at Sherringham or any other light is the magnificent "lantern," as it is called, atop the 64-foot tower.

And climbing the iron ladder inside the tower is no assignment for the weak-hearted. It's straight up and no refreshment booths on the way.

Electric Power

Inside the lantern there's just room to stand. The area is crammed with gear.

The light, says Fred with pride, has burned 52 years. And it looks capable of another 52 without doing a fadeout.

The timed switching gear in earlier days was activated by weights much like the old grandfather clock. The weights took three hours to drop to the bottom of the tower.

"It took 10 minutes to crank them back up into the lantern for another drop . . . and so on until daylight," explained the keeper.

Today the machinery is motivated by "shore power."

The lamp makes a complete revolution every 15 seconds.

In case of power failure an emergency auxiliary engine takes over at the flick of a switch.

The magnifying lens cost $750,000 in 1912.

Impossible, you say?

They cost as high as $4 million today.

The prisms, 100 or more, are cut by hand from special glass.

The Sherringham light has been damage-free throughout its lifetime.

For protection the main gear is in a hall of mercury.

And in case of earthquake (these boys think of everything), the gear is fitted with a cushion of ball-bearings which acts as a shock-absorber.

Airliner Crashes, 30 Feared Dead

AUGELHOLM, Sweden (CP) — A plane with 39 passengers aboard crashed tonight at nearby Vejbylaet. The plane was reported to have exploded in the air during an approach for a landing at Augelholm.

Police said about 30 persons were believed killed. The plane, belonging to the Linjeflyg Airline, was on a routine flight from Stockholm.

Exercise Boy Saves Race Horses

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fast action by a 17-year-old exercise rider was credited today with averting a potentially disastrous fire in a thoroughbred barn at Pimlico race track.

One horse was burned badly and may have to be destroyed, but 60 others were led to safety.

Jerry Kamm spotted the fire in a stall occupied by Black Tie. Kamm grabbed a fire extinguisher and put out the blaze after leading the horse outside.

Bond Sales Hit $917 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — Sales of the new Canadian savings bonds totalled $917,000,000 up to Thursday, Finance Minister Gordon announced today.

He said redemption of previous savings bonds issues for purchase of the 1964 series have not been as large as last year, but he cited no amount.

NATO Backs
N-Fleet Study

PARIS (Reuters) — Parliamentarians of the 15 NATO member countries today approved a recommendation urging their governments to explore in detail various approaches to the creation of a NATO nuclear force.

The proposed force would be based on the principle of association between North America and Europe on a basis of equality.

The recommendation was voted by a large majority at the NATO parliamentarians' conference which ends its annual five-day meeting here today.

There were 27 votes in favor and none against, while 13 members of parliament, including all delegates from Iceland, Norway, Denmark and Belgium and one Italian socialist abstained.

This was the second consecutive year NATO parliamentarians decided against pressing for the immediate creation of a U.S.-sponsored, mixed-manned nuclear fleet, the multilateral force (MLF).

Instead they decided to await the outcome of talks between Prime Minister Harold Wilson and President Johnson in Washington early next month.

The controversial MLF project, which so far is supported only by the West German government, was bitterly attacked in the conference's plenary sessions and in meetings of its political and military committees.

The conference's standing committee reached a compromise formula after the military committee decided the question is primarily political and that in its present form the MLF is militarily "superfluous and wasteful."

The political committee called for further studies in view of charges that the MLF is "divisive and dangerous" to the Atlantic alliance.

The final recommendation which was voted today leaves the door open.

It reads: "Each of the various approaches to all proposals in this (NATO nuclear) field, among which a multilateral force is the only current proposal, should be explored in detail by all interested governments with a view to the orderly resolution of the question."

PARATROOPS POISED
TO SAVE HOSTAGESJews Absolved
Of Deicide
In RC Move

VATICAN CITY (CP) — The Vatican ecumenical council today approved a historic declaration on the Jews and other non-Christians after Pope Paul rejected a move led by Canadian and U.S. bishops for an immediate vote on the council's controversial religious liberty declaration.

The document on non-Christians, which says the Jews must never be considered cursed or specially blamed for the crucifixion of Christ, was approved by 1,657 prelates in favor, 242 in favor but reservations and 99 opposed.

The declaration also makes overtures to the Hindus, Buddhists and Moslems and restates the Roman Catholic Church's opposition to discrimination or harassment on account of race, color or creed.

The declaration, one of the most controversial before the council, is not expected to be promulgated as a decree until the next council session.

But the favorable vote means no major changes of substance can be made, and that it is only a question of time—barring unforeseen developments—before the declaration becomes a formal council decree.

Council sources said the Pope's decision denying an appeal from more than half the council for a vote on the religious liberty declaration was Continued on Page 3

REBEL ARMY LEADER, in white shirt, struggles for his life as he is taken away by government soldiers during recent roundup in Kindu, The Congo. He and other prisoners were taken to Leopoldville for imprisonment. Government troops left Kindu Thursday in advance of rebel stronghold of Stanleyville where Canadians are held as hostages.

Canada Names Yukon Peak
In Honor of John Kennedy

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson announced today that a mountain in the Yukon, the lofty 14,000-foot peak is being named after John F. Kennedy, the late president of the United States, assassinated a year ago.

Making his announcement in the Commons, Mr. Pearson said the 14,000-foot peak is a "solid and enduring monument... a symbol of aspiration and upward reach."

Mr. Pearson noted that it was a year ago that President Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, Texas, and said the shock of the world is still felt.

The prime minister recalled that he had attended the funeral of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1945, and said there was a great outpouring of grief then, but for a man who had done his work.

The grief over the death of John Fitzgerald Kennedy was for a young man just rising to his career heights and the grief was coupled with "the ache of unfulfillment."

Mount Kennedy is one of the highest peaks in Canada that hitherto had no name. Its location is 60 degrees north latitude and 140 degrees west longitude.

A statement from the prime minister's office said the mountain, 180 miles due west of Whitehorse and within 15 miles of the Alaska border, is surrounded by glaciers and overlooks Seward Glacier to the south.

The statement said Mount Kennedy is two miles south-west of Mount Logan, Canada's highest mountain.

It also said the government confirms its intention to contribute $100,000 to the John Fitzgerald Kennedy Memorial Library fund.

The government decision was applauded by all Commons members.

Belgian Force
Set for Action

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgian paratroopers are ready to intervene if needed to save the lives of whites held as hostages in The Congo's rebel-held Stanleyville, the government announced tonight.

A foreign affairs ministry statement said a battalion of Belgian paratroopers was awaiting further orders on the island of Ascension, off the west coast of Africa.

The announcement said that "with the assistance of the U.S. Air Force, the 1st Battalion of Belgian Paratroopers has been transported to the island of Ascension, where they are staying with the authorization of the British government."

The statement described the move as "preparatory measures so as to undertake, if needed, a rescue operation for purely humanitarian reasons."

Congoese
Warn U.S.,
Belgium

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Congoese government spokesmen today warned Belgium that any unilateral decision to send troops into The Congo would be "aggression"—but it a proposal were first made to the Congo government, "the latter would study it with favor."

The spokesman was Emmanuel Sindiga, who also warned the United States against negotiating with the Stanleyville rebel regime without Congo government agreement, and went on: "Belgium's unilateral decision to send elite troops (paratroopers) to The Congo to protect her citizens would be... aggression."

Troops Close In
On Rebel Centre

KINDU (AP) — Congoese troops and their white mercenary leaders pushed steadily northward today toward rebel Stanleyville. There were no immediate reports of rebel resistance.

Radio Stanleyville broadcast a warning from rebel leader Christophe Gbenye that "any attack provoked by the Americans may end the stay of execution of Paul Carlsson." Carlsson, an American medical missionary, was sentenced to death as a spy but his execution was postponed until Monday.

Gen. Joseph Mobutu, the Congoese army's commander-in-chief, predicted in Kindu that his forces would take Stanleyville by next week.

Major Michael Hoare, a South African mercenary, moved out of Kindu Thursday with his 5th Commando Group and headed for Punia, about 100 miles to the north. Stanleyville is about 150 miles farther north.

Hoare had about 25 trucks and a handful of armored cars. He was joined by the 6th Commando, a somewhat larger, better equipped force of Belgian mercenaries and Congoese troops.

Informed sources said between 200 and 400 mercenaries, mostly South Africans, Belgians and Britons were leading the attack, supported by between 300 and 1,500 Congoese.

The troops moved north through country heavily infested with rebels. While the main force apparently was encountering little or no opposition, smaller forces faced the constant danger of ambush.

Premier Moïse Tshombe's central government hopes the capture of Stanleyville will break the back of the rebel resistance and help unify The Congo. Tshombe broadcast an appeal to the rebels Thursday to surrender.

Thant's call was contained in his 16,000-word introduction to the annual report on the state of the world as he sees it to the UN General Assembly opening Dec. 1.

His statement dwelt briefly on the precarious UN financial situation and wound up with the hope there will be a solution before the assembly meets.

Thant reported a $112,000,000 deficit as of Sept. 30, arrears of $112,000,000 on the Congo and Middle East peace-keeping accounts and only $24,800,000 cash on hand. He said cash resources would practically disappear in six months unless a payments solution is found.

The secretary-general made no reference to U.S. determination to challenge the General Assembly voting rights of the Soviet bloc and France unless they pay peace-keeping arrears.

Thant said disarmament questions continue to have high priority on the international agenda, despite the advances marked by the limited nuclear test-ban treaty, which he noted Comprehensive Communism China and France have not signed it and there has been no agreement to ban nuclear tests.
